

4 Brazilian Marines Told To Board Ship

Hijackers Assured of Asylum; Venezuela Plans to Protest

BY MAURY MATTO

BELEM, Brazil (AP) — Four Brazilian marines left today to board the hijacked Venezuelan freighter Anzoategui off the Brazilian coast. The ship later was reported proceeding south toward this port at the mouth of the Amazon River.

Lt. Francisco Mereiros Araujo and three sergeants were under orders to take control of the ship in the name of the Brazilian government.

Presumably, they had assurances from the nine armed hijackers—members of a Venezuelan terrorist organization—there would be no resistance.

The marines left here aboard a chartered commercial airliner for the coastal town of Anapa. There, they were to have boarded a boat for the short trip to the Anzoategui, which had anchored off the island of Maraca.

Close to Coast
In Washington, the Defense Department reported, however, that the ship was under way this morning, staying close to shore. It said that the Anzoategui was 70 miles from the island and proceeding southward toward Belem. This port is about 240 miles south of Maraca.

It was not known whether the marines were on board.

The hijackers have been promised asylum in Brazil, an action expected to bring strong protests from Venezuela.

Their chief aim to prevent President Romulo Betancourt's trip to the United States—was thwarted. He went ahead with the trip, saying the Venezuelan people and armed forces back his regime.

May Lack Fuel
The Brazilian marines were under orders to take control of the ship pending the arrival late tonight or early Wednesday of a Brazilian navy corvette carrying marines to escort the Anzoategui 240 miles down the coast to Belem at the mouth of the Amazon River.

There was speculation that the ship would be turned to Page 5, Col. 6

Arrested 6 Hours After Bodies Are Discovered in Far West Side Dwelling

BY BOB KNAUS

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — A 16-year-old West High School student was taken into custody at a farm in Oconto County late this morning, about six hours after the bodies of his parents, two sisters and a brother were found in the blood-spattered kitchen of their far west side home.

Authorities were returning Harry Hebard, 16, to Green Bay for questioning in the shooting of the five members of his family Monday evening.

Killed were Jack Hebard, 38, his wife Joyce, 35, Hebard's stepson John Rudell, 15, and his 11-year-old twin step-daughters, Janice and Judy Rudell. The family lived at 2636 Hazlewood Lane in the Hobart area of Green Bay.

Young Hebard was taken into custody shortly before noon, after a search that began about 7 a.m. when the bodies were discovered. He was picked up in a barn on the John Pinta farm, located on Highway 32 several miles north of Pulaski in Oconto County.

Young Hebard was returned to Green Bay about 12:15 p.m. and rushed into the office of Dist. Atty. Robert Warren.

No details were immediately available on the boy's apprehension in Pulaski. Eight Brown County squad cars, the Pulaski village marshal, and several city policemen were involved in the apprehension. Tear gas was taken to the scene, but it is not known if it was used.

The bodies were found about 7 o'clock this morning by two detectives who had been sent to the home to investigate a report that the lights had been on all night and no activity had been seen.

The report was made at 6:27 this morning by Darold Aebesch, a neighbor and co-worker of Hebard's at the airport. Aebesch had gone past the Hebard home on his way to work this morning and had seen no sign of activity although the lights were on.

He called the home, but got no answer. Aebesch called his wife to check to see if the lights were on.

U. S. Prepares To Welcome Betancourt

President Kennedy Orders Parade at National Capital

BY LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy ordered a parade today through the heart of the capital today as a special welcome to Venezuela's President Romulo Betancourt, a friend of the United States and a No. 1 Latin-American enemy of Cuba's Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

En route to his meeting with Kennedy, Betancourt received an enthusiastic welcome Monday when he stepped off at San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Without mentioning Cuba by name, he told newsmen, "as long as the Communist beachhead in America is not eliminated, we will be exposed to the risk of sabotage."

Betancourt Cheered
He began his trip as headlines focused on the hijacking of the Venezuelan freighter Anzoategui, and avowed Communist attempt to discredit Betancourt and his trip. But U.S. officials treated the hijacking as virtually a closed incident, showing another Red resort to violence. Betancourt, land-lord at San Juan of the cheers of thousands, publicly ignored the runaway ship.

From Kennedy's standpoint, the two-day Washington visit of the Venezuelan leader underscored a theme he has been stressing in U.S. policy toward Cuba and Latin America.

Although the Soviets have some 17,000 troops in Cuba, the bigger Communist danger lies in Red subversion, sabotage and terrorism throughout the Americas whether Castro-connected or not. In the administration view, Betancourt now stands as the prime example of how to beat communism in the hemisphere. A constitutionally elected president, he got social reforms rolling in Venezuela before the Alliance for Progress aid program came along. For the past year, Venezuela has been foremost target of a mounting Red terror campaign—including assassination attempts on Betancourt.

Power Strike Talks Continue, Federal Mediator Asserts

5 Milwaukee Area Plants Are Picketed; Power Not Interrupted

MILWAUKEE (AP)—A federal mediator said Monday night he had met with both sides in the strike against the Wisconsin Electric Power Co. by Local 317 of Operating Engineers Union and secured an agreement to resume bargaining.

Joseph Piconke said the first meeting in the new round of talks was scheduled for 2 p.m. today.

He had directed a 27-1/2-hour bargaining session that broke up shortly before the local's 900 members struck Sunday afternoon in a contract dispute involving wages, output bonuses and contract termination.

The union posted pickets at the company's five area plants, but power has continued without interruption to the 219 central and southeastern Wisconsin companies served by the utility. Supervisory employees replaced the strikers.

A spokesman for the company said linemen belonging to Local 317 of the Electricians Union did not report for work Monday. However, officers of the local and those of Local 2 of the Officers Workers Union said letters were being sent to members instructing them to honor their contracts and to go to their jobs.

Governor Could Act

The company continued to receive coal to fire generators in two downtown plants as trucks were driven by members of Local 200 of the Teamsters Union. The union drivers stopped their vehicles at curbs outside the plants where they were taken over by company supervisors, driven onto company property, unloaded and returned to the drivers.

Two representatives of the Wisconsin Employment Relations Board met late Monday afternoon with Piconke and company representatives, Morris Slavney and Arvid Anderson of the WERB.

Reds Will Remove Soviet Troops From Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russia has informed the United States that several thousand Soviet troops will be withdrawn from Cuba in the next three weeks, diplomatic informants reported today.

This word from Moscow is understood to have been given to the Kennedy administration Monday through the Soviet Embassy here.

It is understood that President Kennedy's decision to call congressional leaders to a meeting with him Monday night followed that development. The bipartisan group, about a score of legislators, had only two hours notice.

Big Goal of Science

Proteins are the building blocks of flesh, muscles, brain, eyes, nerves, fingernails and organs of humans, as well as the wood and leaves of trees, the fur of animals, every vegetable that grows in short, they are a basic constituent of every living cell. Some 100,000 to one million different proteins exist.

To learn why and how a protein molecule functions has been a prime goal in science. Speaking at the annual meeting of the Biophysical Society here, Watson said the full details of one such protein have been almost completely worked out by a team of scientists at the Laboratory of Molecular Biology, University Postgraduate Medical School, in London.

5 Ashen Bodies Tell Story of Bay's Most Ruthless Crime

First Chapter of Violent Slaying Written by Killer With .22 Pistol

BY CHARLES HOUSE

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

GREEN BAY — The blood-red front door of the modestly trim white home in the western suburbs of Green Bay opened Tuesday on the most grimly shocking murder crime in the history of Green Bay.

Lying in gore, five ashen white bodies told the basics of the first chapter in the story of a crime which by nighttime was winging its way across the world. "Dead was 'Lucky O'Hara', the nom de plume of Handsome Jack Hebard, and he lay on a divan in blood-soaked, permanent sleep. Powder burns on his head were eloquent; there was a murderer who crept.

Dead also, and killed at shockingly close range in the small rooms were four other persons—Mrs. Hebard, yesterday a trim, pretty vital young woman; John Rudell, 15, her son by a former marriage; and a set of twins, Janice and Judy Rudell, 11.

Absent from the white remodeled farm house was 16-year-old Harry Hebard. Absent, too, was a .22 calibre pistol, the property of the dead man.

"Young Harry is a moody kid," said a neighbor — "kind of quiet and sometimes in trouble with the police. He didn't get along very good with his brother, but he sure likes those little twins."

"The Hebard family lived quietly on about two acres of land on rural Hazlewood Lane. Hebard, always fond of cars and engines, supplemented his regular income by playing to county fairs in the Midwest."

"When I was a kid," he told this writer recently, "I kind of hooked up with a daredevil outfit, and I changed my name to Lucky O'Hara because I didn't want my mother to read that her son was in that kind of dangerous business. I always told her I worked as a mechanic."

One of Hebard's most dangerous stunts was to imprison himself in a breakaway box with dynamite. Clad in protective clothing and a helmet, Hebard would literally dynamite himself into near-insensibility and the breakaway box would smash from the explosion.

"I always loved the feeling of seeming to be reckless," Hebard had told the reporter, "and I like the excitement and the travel and I like the crowds, too."

Tuesday, the crowds gathered at the Hebard home, trim and white, with the blood-red front door—and it was not the kind of a crowd nor the reasons he would have preferred.

Gave Life for Hers

Girl Tells How Speeding Car Killed Boy After He Pushed Her to Safety

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"He was my first serious boy friend," said Paulette Lewis, 15. "We had been going steady one month and 12 days."

Paulette told Monday, between tears, of the moment David Brimley sacrificed his life for hers as they walked, hand-in-hand, across an avenue near their homes.

Stop Light Ignored
Suddenly a car roared through a red light, glanced off another auto, and hurtled, brakes squealing, at Paulette and David.

"David shouted, 'Look out,' and he gave me a push," Paulette said. "I think he tried to run, but when I recovered my balance, I couldn't see him."

David, 17, who had just gotten his first job and enrolled in his first college course, was hurled 150 feet to his death.

The careening car slid into another power pole and halted. Three young men jumped out and ran. "I looked around," said Paulette, "and saw where the car had delivery boy."

Leaks in Masonry Repaired

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q We own a small motel constructed of cement block. We have not yet plastered the inside walls. In the last several years we have had trouble with the west wall of the end room sweating and moldering. This covers about the first four rows of block from the floor, as well as a triangular area in the southwest and northwest corners of the room. We heat with natural gas wall panel heaters. What is causing this and how might we correct it?

A Description indicates ground dampness is working into the concrete blocks, and then seeping upward. This can also be caused by leaks in the mortar between blocks. You should have this wall treated with a waterproofing preparation and have any faulty mortar repointed. Get estimate from mason for putting in perimeter insulation.

Vibrates Plumbing System

Q Whenever the hot water faucet in the kitchen is turned on, it sounds as though the whole plumbing system is about ready to collapse. The pipes vibrate and make a terrific noise. At first the hot water will run out slowly then after about a half minute the water comes out in a big spurt and then the noise lets up. What can be done to remedy the situation?

A I suspect your hot water heater is under pressure (as in the hot water supply system), it will not vaporize when heated to (or above) the boiling point but will flash into steam when the pressure is relieved. When a faucet is turned on, this pressure is reduced, steam forms instantly and causes the vibration and noise as it forces its way to the outlet for escape. Installing a water temperature control will prevent overheating of the water. I suggest you have a competent plumber verify this by making a personal inspection, and necessary correction.

Small Girl Space Savers

For most furniture for a small girl's room pretty is as pretty as practical. The furniture must be practical about space since the room is so often small and awash with overflow of not-so-small possessions. Mothers have been known to say that one more doll and one more cuddly animal, would have their daughters sleeping in the hall.

New spring furniture makes a point of styling dainty bedrooms space economically. Chests no longer make do with one or two sizes but come in many that line up and fit storage to every last inch of available wall length and stacking possibilities with them use upper wall. More novel ideas include a pull-out hide-away big enough for all the toys a little miss owns—which takes a mattress and becomes a trundle bed for staying all night chums when she turns teen age. And the wall desk closes its writing leaf to project only inches from the wall. The drop-leaves and tops of cabinets in the same group fend off scratches stains and heat marks with extra study surfacing in matching antique off white.

A Lovelier You

By Mary Sue Miller

A lovely writes: My weight is frustrating. I weigh every day. Some days I gain and others I lose. Yet I eat about the same amount. Could scales be that unreliable? Or can weight be that capricious?

For all scale watchers, this answer: A scale may get out of kilter, but when it does it usually goes all the way out. And there can be no doubt about its inaccuracy.

Quite oppositely, weight may fluctuate by a pound or so during a twenty-four hour period. The happenstance is not unusual or abnormal. The reasons vary.

Just drink two glasses of water prior to getting on a scale and you will weigh a pound more. A pint's a pound, until the body has time to process it.

But over and above what you eat and drink—if that intake is near normal—a principal cause of weight variations stems from the sum of your activities. The more active you are, the less chance there is for food to weigh in. On busy-beaver days, more calories are used up than on lazy ones. And used calories literally are weightless.

Consequently, weighing every day can be misleading. Your true weight averages out over a period of time and to get a true picture of it, you should visit the scales no oftener than once weekly. That is so whether you wish to gain, reduce or keep the status quo. For complete accuracy, be sure to weigh on the same scale, at the same hour and to wear the same amount of clothing.

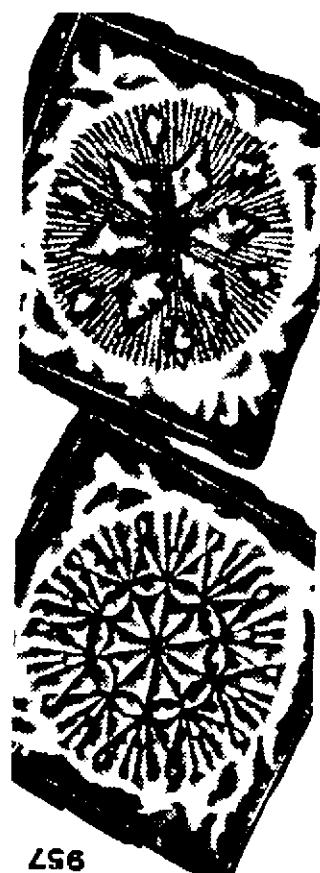

Woop no more about excess weight! You can lose without hunger pangs, fatigue and flabby aftermaths. Just send for Lose With Out Blues—a sixteen-page booklet that gives delicious menus, easy spot-reducing exercises, dieting tricks, your model weight and how to maintain it. How to Save on Taxes—XII

Keep Records for Expense Accounts

BY SYLVIA PORTER

(In Collaboration With The Research Institute of America)

If you will have expense account deductions this year, you must not delay in arranging your expense account records so that you will avoid trouble when you file your 1963 return in 1964. As I reported in the third column in this series in preparing your 1962 return, you still can use estimates of your travel and entertain expenses if you don't have the exact details.

But for 1963 if you don't keep the proper records required by the Treasury, you can lose all your deductions — even though you actually spent the money for a sound business purpose.

The key to backing up your 1963 deductions under the new Treasury rules is a currently kept diary, account book, expense statement, etc. Currently, it means that the entries must be made in Treasury jargon at or near the time of the expenditures. In practice, this probably means not later than the end of the day during which the expenditure was made. If you try writing up a diary on a weekly or monthly basis, its value as proof of your expenses will become almost worthless.

If you keep your diary current, you can transcribe the information to an expense account statement which you submit to your employer in the regular course of good business practice. An adequate diary can be easily transcribed into the form required by your employer at a later date, such as weekly or monthly.

Keep Record

Here is the information you must record in your diary, expense book, etc., on a daily basis. Travel: The cost date you leave and return places traveled to business reason for trip or nature of business benefit expected.

Entertainment: Cost, date, name and address of restaurant, theatre, etc., and nature of entertainment if it isn't otherwise apparent. Business reason or business benefit expected and nature of any business discussion or activity. Business relationship of each person entertained.

Entertainment before or after business discussion. If the entertainment takes place directly preceding or following a substantial and bona fide business discussion, you record not only the information required for the entertainment but also details of the business discussion — time and duration of the discussion, place, business purpose and business relationship of those participating.

Details required: Each separate expenditure. However, you can make single daily entries for each of the following groups: breakfast, lunch and/or dinner, tips with their underlying expense, incidental costs of traveling away from home such as gas, oil, taxis, and incidental costs in connection with entertainment such as taxis, telephones.

Supporting data: In addition to your current entries in your diary, you'll need receipts, bills or similar evidence to prove amounts spent for lodging while away from home and for other separate expenditures of $25 or more. The one exception is that transportation charges of $25 or more need not be supported this way if receipts or bills aren't readily available. For instance, receipts generally will be needed for plane fares because plane receipts are generally available, but railroad fares of $25 or more wouldn't require this because rail receipts aren't generally given.

You must keep these records whether you are a sole proprietor, professional, etc., or an employee reimbursed for your expenses. A simplified record keeping is possible, though, for employees who are given a per diem allowance of not more than $25 per day or who are reimbursed up to $25 a day while traveling away from home.

If you're in this group, you'll generally need to show only the time, place and business purpose of your trip. You need not go into other details, but your allowances and reimbursements must be determined in good faith by your employer.

It's possible — to end this series on a bright note — that if you keep careful expense account records for 1963, you'll find that you are entitled to deduct even more than your estimates of past years and good records can stop a Treasury agent from cutting down your deduction claims. It's at least possible.

Engineer Eats With Black Box at Elbow

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP)—Jerry Havenhill eats breakfast with a black box at his elbow. It has switches and signal lights. He flips a switch. It starts the engine of his car parked outside.

Another switch starts the engine of his wife's car.

A few minutes later Havenhill flips two more switches and the car heaters go on.

"I didn't like sitting out in the cold and waiting for the engine to warm up and then waiting for the heater to produce heat," Havenhill explains, "so I went to work on this system several months ago."

He is an engineer at an electronics plant.

Waupaca Objects To Ultimatum on Plowing Runways

Aeronautics Unit Warns County May Lose Aids if Airport Not Clear

WAUPACA — The State Department of Aeronautics recently "got tough" with Waupaca policy on keeping the Waupaca Airport open for year-around flying was answered Monday by Judge Wendell McHenry, chairman of the city's airport committee.

Mayor Lloyd Matheson received a telegram from the state board, stating in effect, the city must keep the runway plowed or face possible recovery action by the state for state and federal funds used at the airport.

Judge McHenry said he suggested having City Atty. Laurie Anderson write to the state board to determine under which state or federal ruling "we are obligated."

"We know there is nothing in the contract that obligates the city to plow the snow in the winter for a few itinerant fliers," he added.

Judge McHenry said he talked to a member of the state board shortly after the first snowfall this winter. "I told him Waupaca does not have a rotary plow and does not justify having a plow because the traffic never amounts to anything at the airport even when the city had an active airport," he continued.

"I told him I hoped the traffic would increase to such a degree as to justify such a purchase," he added.

"Not Severe"

Judge McHenry explained that the expense of keeping the runway plowed would not have been too severe this winter but indicated last year's snow removal "would have been terrific."

Judge McHenry maintained it would be impossible to plow the snow off the runway with a conventional type plow because of the newly installed lights.

He indicated a state plan to plow the snow into the middle of the runway and then have it hauled away would be an expensive undertaking.

"They had never indicated we were obligated to keep the airport open all year when they talked of improving the airport," the judge pointed out.

A story from the Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Saturday indicated the ultimatum to Waupaca would serve as a warning to other counties and cities with airports subsidized by state and federal funds.

Called "Unfortunate"

Judge McHenry said no one likes to be made an example of

Speaker Urges Youths to Aid Government

Prof. Gilbert James Says More Interest Needed in Societies

Tri-Y and Hi-Y members were urged to be interested in and to serve their government at the kick-off meeting Monday for the Youth and Government program sponsored by the Appleton YMCA and the Appleton Rotary Club.

"You should look upon governmental positions as a very noble kind of occupation," Prof. Gilbert James, sociology teacher at the University of Wisconsin Fox Valley Center, the guest speaker, said. "The more good people we have, the less opportunity there is for bad ones to get into these positions."

Whether or not a person works in government, "we must back up local officials when they are on a difficult side of a moral question and need the support of good people," he went on, "and we must criticize them when we think they are wrong. This is part of our responsibility as citizens."

James began his talk with a review of basic sociology. The necessities of society, he said, are people, education, work, a sense of purpose or religion, and finally a means of maintaining order in the system. We need government to organize and regulate our behavior so we work together as a society, he said.

Mayor Speaks

Appleton Mayor Clarence Mitchell also addressed the young people, discussing important concerns of Appleton government now and urging them to keep their interest in government.

Officers of each Tri-Y and Hi-Y club, club advisors, city and school officials attended the kick-off dinner. Mrs. Maxine Vaneehoven, Y women and girls' director, and Robert Tucker, associate youth director, explained the Youth and Government program and distributed booklets on it.

The young people have until Friday to file nomination papers for 30 city offices and the 20 aldermanic posts. An election rally is planned for 7 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 26, at Edison School. Each candidate will make a one-minute speech and City Clerk Elden Broehm will speak on voting procedures before club members elect the officials.

All elected officials will attend committee meetings of the city council from March 11 to 19. Youth in Government Day will be March 20, when elected officials will spend the afternoon at city hall with city officials, attend the regular council meeting that evening, and conduct a mock council meeting following the regular meeting.

Tri-Y and Hi-Y Members began work on the Youth and Government program sponsored by the Appleton YMCA and the Appleton Rotary Club at a kick-off dinner Monday. The climax of the program will be Youth and Government Day March 20. At the dinner are, from left, Mary Blum, Tri-Y member; Owen Kuehnsted, Rotary youth committee chairman and toastmaster; Gilbert James, professor of sociology at the University of Wisconsin Fox Valley Center and guest speaker at the dinner, and Tim Huven, Hi-Y member. Two Testify as Murder Trial at Oshkosh Begins

George Schuster Being Tried on Second Degree Murder Indictment

OSHKOSH — The third degree murder trial of George Schuster, 39, former Oshkosh man now living in Appleton, opened before Circuit Judge Arnold J. Cane this morning with only two witnesses going to the stand before the hearing recessed for a procedural conference.

Schuster is charged in the April 20, 1962, death of Mrs. May Gokey, 61, Oshkosh, who operated the tavern on Harrison Street and lived next to it, died of a heart attack which, the state contends, was caused by an assault upon her by Schuster.

James Mathwig, 2016 Shorewood Drive, Oshkosh, who operates the tavern and found her body, and Winnebago County Patrolman Harold Pepler, the first patrolman at the scene, were the only two state witnesses to testify before the recess.

A conference was scheduled with Judge Cane, Dist. Atty. Jack D. Steinhilber and Defense Atty. Henry Hughes to set up procedure to conclude testimony this afternoon of several out-of-town witnesses so they could be excused from the trial.

Groves Testimony

Testimony this morning centered around the finding of Mrs. Gokey's body by Mathwig and the moving of the body by Pepler at the request of Dr. Steele. The appointments include the doctor and later was told by Investigator Richard Guenther to move the body back to its original position. Pictures were not taken until the body had been moved back to where it was found, he said.

Under cross-examination, Pepler said he thought Mrs. Gokey's right hand was lying across her forehead when he first saw her. However, pictures introduced into evidence showed her right arm and hand down at her side.

Moved Blankets

Pepler also admitted rearranging blankets that had been around her body when she was found. The blankets were moved when Dr. Steele examined her, he testified.

Mathwig said he looked for Mrs. Gokey because she had not been around for several days. He said he noticed the bolt and loop type lock on the back door of her house was broken when he entered.

Schuster frequented the tavern, Mathwig testified, but never caused any trouble. He said he never saw Schuster attempt to "pick up" any girls at the tavern.

In his opening statement to the jury, Hughes said he would concede Mrs. Gokey died of a heart attack but that no evidence would be found to prove that her death was hastened or that an assault had been made upon Mrs. Gokey.

Steinhilber said facts would be presented to prove that Schuster attempted to force his attentions on Mrs. Gokey, that she resisted and had a heart attack. She had a history of heart trouble, the district attorney told the jury.

The jury of seven men and five women was selected Monday afternoon from a panel of 23 names. The drawing of the jury took less than 30 minutes.

Private Industry Told to Sell Appleton, Americanism

NAM Speaker Says System of Free Enterprise Needs Backing

BY DICK LYNEIS
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Representatives of private industry were advised Monday to sell Appleton and to sell Americanism "before we all get sold down the river."

Speaking to the Lions Club at the Conway Hotel, Dr. Neal Bowman, a professional speaker with the National Association of Manufacturers and a former professor of marketing at Temple University, Philadelphia, said, "The big trouble with private enterprise today is that it is too private."

He admonished the group for not talking enough about the community where they live and for not selling the American system as opposed to the Communist system.

"When I go to Texas," Dr. Bowman said, "I meet people who have no compunctions about their sales psychology."

"The trouble with most of us, is that we spend too much time griping and give too little thought to grouping."

In keeping with the "Salute to Industry Week" theme, since the Appleton Chamber of Commerce has designated this week as "Salute to Industry Week," Dr. Bowman said that selling Appleton should be more than just a chamber program. "It should be a whole community effort."

"We all have competition, and every group that takes a position has opposition. Competition is the incentive to prove and improve," he said.

"What I want to do today is to provide food for thought, because we're all fed food-wise, but underfed fact-wise. This leads to our big problem, which is economic illiteracy — something which we must all fight."

"Economic illiteracy" is what makes democracy impossible and autocracy probable. In these days of world problems and national economic problems, we are ignoring the number one weapon in our arsenal which is facts."

Dr. Bowman "spelled out" facts as being "F facts, A — analysis, S — conclusions from analysis, T — testing and S — solutions."

"But," too many people just will not get the facts.

"Our battlefield is the arena of public opinion. We must influence the influential and get the influential to use their influence."

Have Freedoms

"We have many freedoms in this country such as freedom of worship, work and freedom of expression," he pointed out.

"Freedom of expression is where we fail, and suppression of impressions is the pitfall of democracy."

"At times everyone must be heard 'so stand up and be counted. Tell what makes America and what America makes' he said."

"Tell what makes Appleton and what Appleton makes."

Dr. Bowman praised the state of Florida for "the communistic system vs. the American system" taught in its public schools.

"Remember, that we are just one rocket away from destruction. Communism is so real that it cannot be denied."

"Give them one inch, and they want to be rulers. If we don't wake up, we'll break up. If we don't out-sell communism, we'll have to abandon Americanism."

"We're fighting against pitchmen who are trying to sell a 'red package' at the expense of freedom," he stressed.

"We must remember that the industrial worker is the only irreplaceable part of our whole economy."

He said the industrial worker must be convinced that profit is not an ugly word for industry.

"Without profit, we're dead. The only security in the world today is to work for an organization that makes a profit."

He pointed out that $33 billion was spent last year by the federal government for welfare programs.

"We are spending $17.40 every minute, just to pay the interest on our national debt."

'Five M's'

The speaker explained the "Five M's" necessary to make the American economy work — manpower, money, management, market and motivation.

Under management, Dr. Bowman stressed that "the greatest responsibility of management is to make a profit to help our whole economy."

In conclusion, the speaker described America as "the greatest of young nations and the youngest of the great nations. Our forefathers used work and understanding to make a wonderland out of a woodland."

"Let's go out and talk about America before it is too late. And do the same for Appleton," he concluded.

Diocese Plans Confirmation

Bishop, Auxiliary Announce Schedule In Area Parishes

A series of Confirmation appointments which started Sunday and will continue until June 28 has been announced by the Green Bay Diocesan chancery office.

The appointments include the doctor and later was told by Investigator Richard Guenther to move the body back to its original position. Pictures were not taken until the body had been moved back to where it was found, he said.

Under cross-examination, Pepler said he thought Mrs. Gokey's right hand was lying across her forehead when he first saw her. However, pictures introduced into evidence showed her right arm and hand down at her side.

Pepler also admitted rearranging blankets that had been around her body when she was found. The blankets were moved when Dr. Steele examined her, he testified.

Injured were Robert Moore, 65, of Detroit, Mich., and Robert L. LeClaire, 42, West DePere. Moore had hand and chest injuries and LeClaire received hand injuries.

Aldermen Deny Push in Garage Investigation

Claim Reports of Attempt to Stop Study of Situation Are Unfounded

The chairmen of two major Appleton Common Council committees today denied reports of being pressured into postponing indefinitely the investigation originally ordered into alleged misconduct at the Appleton city garage.

On Feb. 5, in the wake of a sudden resignation by the superintendent of municipal equipment who charged lack of cooperation, the common council's street-sanitation said it would conduct a joint hearing on conditions at the garage at 924 Spencer St.

Some aldermen, disturbed over the resignation of the equipment superintendent, made charges at the meeting of "women and drinking on the job, blackballing of certain employees and newcomers, lack of administration and unsubordination."

Two Vacancies

When the street-sanitation committee met at city hall Monday afternoon, no mention was made of the proposed joint hearing which was to have been set up with the personnel committee.

Aldermen did discuss two vacancies that exist at the city garage. Acting Public Works Director Henry Crowe was authorized to hire a mechanic for the garage, and to advertise that the City of Appleton is looking for a new superintendent of municipal equipment.

The previous superintendent, James D. Lewer, Brookfield, had requested reinstatement after his resignation but it was denied by the common council.

As of today, no date has been set by the common council committees to investigate the charges contained in Lewer's letter and those made by aldermen themselves earlier in the month.

Unfounded Reports

Reports that Ald. Kenneth Loos (3rd) and Ald. R. P. Groh (8th), chairmen of the street-sanitation and personnel committees, respectively, have been "under

Two Menasha Councilmen Will Side With Opposition

Stand Against Petition for Rezoning Land

MENASHA — Third Ward Ald William Erickson and Morgan L. Eckrich Monday night publicly announced they will side with the opposition in the growing battle over rezoning of the area known as Doty Tennis Courts, site of a proposed 19-unit apartment building in Menasha's Third Ward.

Both aldermen indicated they will vote against a petition asking rezoning of the property from single to multi family residents.

They are expected to be backed up by the arguments of possibly more than 100 residents in the island area who oppose the apartment project and may appear at the public hearing to-night. More than 200 persons have signed a petition protesting the rezoning.

Limit Discussion

The conflict threatened to erupt into a verbal battle Monday night when Mayor John Klein said he will attempt to limit discussion at the public hearing to 15 minutes for both sides.

Erickson said he took exception to the 15 minute rule and said it is 'not right to limit the debate to 15 minutes.'

He questioned how all parties could speak in that period of time.

Fifth Ward Ald Richard O. Hansen agreed with Mayor Klein that the length of time should be curtailed. However, he said he is dissatisfied because the identity of investors in the project have not been revealed.

He said he wanted to know who the promoters are and said he will vote against the proposal unless they are identified.

Private Area

Erickson read a statement citing reasons he is against the project and outlined commercial and industrial development in the Third Ward.

He said the Third Ward has numerous industries and commercial enterprises but added that none affect the "privacy of residents."

Erickson termed the decision of the Menasha planning commission to recommend approval of rezoning of the property to multi family as "rubber stamp approval."

Eckrich spoke out against the project and presented two letters from residents who protested the rezoning action.

He suggested other areas in the city which he said could be set up for multi family zoning.

"I don't know which one is the best. But I know this one (the Winnebago Avenue area) is the worst," he said.

"I don't think that is the place for it," Eckrich said.

He argued that a precedent will be set if the apartment building is allowed to go through and that other commercial enterprises will attempt to invade the residential area.

Mayor Klein who remained neutral in the discussion, said he hoped whatever the outcome is it is for the benefit of the city.

He asked council members to consider it very, very seriously.

School Board Feud Still Smoldering

MENASHA — A smoldering feud between the Menasha City Council and Menasha School Board threatened to erupt into another battle Monday night when aldermen received and disapproved of a letter from the board listing budgetary cuts for 1963 operation.

Fifth Ward Ald Richard O. Hansen criticized the board's action which left an approximate $31,000 deficit.

He asked that a letter of disapproval be sent to school board members.

'They feel no obligation to the taxpayers and citizens,' Hansen charged.

Figures from the school board showed $25,085.55 cut from the $60,000 deficit in the school board budget and $4,720.04 additional revenues added.

Total reduction of the deficit was listed at $29,805.59 leaving a deficit of more than $31,000.

Aldermen were dissatisfied that the deficit was reduced no lower.

Mayor John Klein indicated he will send a letter to the board indicating the council's feelings on the remaining deficit.

The board of education adopted the revised operating budget of $1,122,364.77 at a meeting last week. The budget will require a tax levy of $908.022.65.

The reduction of $29,805.59 was

Jerome Bomier, commission member was authorized by the commission on Feb. 4 to place advertising notifying interested persons of the opening on the Neenah force.

Ads Placed

He told the commission Monday he placed ads in the League of Wisconsin Municipalities magazine and with the State Association of Chiefs of Police. Both of these ad placements were free of charge, Bomier told the commission.

They were both placed following the Feb. 4 meeting he said.

He explained the league magazine wouldn't publish until about March 5 and in order to advertise in that magazine he made the deadline March 15 instead of March 1.

The board's answer to the city council's order last December that $60,000 be slashed from the originally submitted operating budget of $1,147,450 for 1963.

Suggestions were made by council members at the Monday meeting to charge the deficit from the board's fiscal budget.

To Your Good Health

Emotional Problem Is Cause of Losing Job

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.
Dear Dr. Molner: I have a 31-year-old daughter who is a good secretary.

She has not been very sociable since her husband's death six years ago. In recent months she has shown signs of nervousness. Occasionally she suffers from lapses of memory for a few moments and as a result has been laid off.

Her doctor finds no physical ailments. She is ambitious and doesn't seem to realize her condition. What can be done? — W.B.

There's not much for me to go on in this case but perhaps we don't need much to know what to do.

If her troubles aren't physical, what's left? They must be emotional.

With the relative shortage of psychiatrists I am deliberately reluctant to say. Go to a psychiatrist at the drop of a hat. In problems of lesser dimensions more and more physicians are learning to help people over these emotional rough spots and I'm glad to see increasing interest in this sort of care.

But today's case isn't a problem of lesser dimensions. When a capable young woman can't hold her job as a secretary and good secretaries are hard to find it is an indication that her emotional disturbance is severe. The problem is severe enough to interfere with her work, her life, and I am sure, her happiness.

Therefore my advice decidedly is to consult a good psychiatrist. A condition such as this, unless helped, tends to get worse not better.

How to find a psychiatrist isn't always easy. Ask your regular physician to refer you to one. You may have to wait for an appointment. In many smaller or suburban communities it may be necessary to travel to a larger city to consult one.

As to the causes of such a condition, I cannot even attempt to answer. They're too complicated, too varied. However, once they're discovered, effective treatment may be devised.

Dear Dr. Molner: What makes my eyelids flak? Is it a sign of vitamin shortage? Could it cause a person to have difficulty in recognizing distant cars while driving at night? — W.W.

This sounds like a chronic conjunctivitis or infection of the eye. Consult your eye doctor. Yes, vitamin shortage can cause similar symptoms, but so can allergy — and as I said, chronic infection is still more likely and should be checked first.

Deformed Babies

Dear Dr. Molner: There has been much publicity about deformed babies as a result of their mothers taking thalidomide early in pregnancy.

Many years ago while traveling in Egypt I saw several cases of children with the same sort of affliction — hands growing out of their shoulders etc. I am curious as to what might have caused these malformations — years before the drug was known — I wonder if there are hundreds of such babies in the United States and in other countries for this is not a new type of malformation. The thalidomide situation simply marks a new cause.

We have not in the past known precisely what caused these cases other than that something disturbed the baby's development at the time at which the arms (or legs or sometimes other parts of the body) were forming.

To receive a copy of the pamphlet 'The Facts About Shingles' write Dr. Molner in care of this newspaper enclosing a long self-addressed stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin to cover handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily he is unable to answer in individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible. (Copyright 1963)

Existing Ordinance Requires Permit for Home Alterations

MENASHA — If you or your wife replaced a window pane, painted the kitchen cabinets or put up wall paper recently and did not have a building permit, you broke the law.

City Atty. Richard Steffens Tuesday night revealed that under the existing city ordinance, any alteration in a home regardless of cost must be covered by a building permit.

He suggested a new ordinance be enacted which would put a specific limit in dollars on the amount of work requiring a building permit.

The need for a city ordinance covering obstruction of justice, and one requiring bonding of builders who put up roofing or siding for residents also was suggested.

Steffens cited three incidents within the past 90 days in which the city lost money because persons had to be charged under state laws for obstruction of justice.

He suggested that a city ordinance be enacted to cover any cases in which justice is found to be obstructed.

Steffens also suggested that persons who put up siding or roofing in the city be covered by a $1,000 bond.

He pointed out that plumbers who do excavation work are required to post bond.

He said an ordinance of the type requiring bond would protect mainly to outsiders and bankers known as fly by night.

Council members agreed to look into the need for the ordinances.

Bank Offers Land Trade With Menasha for Driveway Area

MENASHA — The First National Bank of Menasha Tuesday night presented a plan to the common council in which the bank would trade 9,125 square feet of land to the city for an equal amount to be used as driveway and service areas by the bank.

The property involved lies in and adjacent to the Water Street parking lot.

The First National Bank is seeking property for two 14-foot driveways entering off Water Street. In return the bank will give the city property on the west side of the parking lot to be used for parking space.

Melvin F. Crowley, representing the bank demonstrated how the bank would be situated on the site and entranceways needed.

Crowley pointed out that the bank property at present consists of 130 feet along Main Street and a 22 1/2 foot opening on Water Street.

Water Tower to be Built

New Appleton Tank to Have Capacity of 3.3 Million Gallons

Appleton Water Department plans to build the new 2,300,000-gallon capacity water tank this summer.

A letter Monday to the common council's street-sanitation committee, the water commission stated the installation of a 12-foot water main from the new Mason tank to the site of the proposed tank at W. Lindbergh and Transit streets.

The commission strongly recommends the installation of this main to get better service and derive the main benefits from the installation of this new tank, the commission said.

Prepare Plans
Superintendent William Gallagher today plans and specifications for the tank are being prepared, and the commission is to call for bids in the near future.

It has been estimated tank construction will cost about $150,000. The commission is awaiting approval of the project from the Board of Health.

Another development, the commission made recommendations concerning installation of future water mains in the Oaks subdivision.

Install Mains
Commission informed city officials that before any mains are laid in the subdivision, it is necessary to install a 12-inch main on E. Newberry from its present terminus to Drive in the Colony Oaks.

Otherwise there will be no available to connect into this system and give them water," the commission said.

Benefits of Industry Told To Optimists

Yearly Payroll Amounts to Over $36 Million Locally

Gerhard K. Willecke, director of research at Miller Electric Manufacturing Co., presented checks for $36,351,572 to members of the Appleton Noon Optimist Club Monday.

The checks were made out to "Employees on Annual Industrial Payrolls" of Appleton, and signed by the Salute to Industry committee.

Willecke's speech was one of a series planned by the Appleton Chamber of Commerce during Salute to Industry Week. The industrial climate benefits everyone, and it is everyone's business, he said.

Defines Industry

Willecke defined industry as "man's activity in the process of adding value to material." During 1961, he said, $200 million in raw materials were brought into the Fox Cities, and $515 million in finished products were sent out. This means that nearly $315 million stayed in the Fox Cities, he said.

From this, Appleton industries paid real estate taxes totaling more than $900,000, and wages of almost $700,000 every week, for an annual total of $36,351,572.

We are fortunate in having a stable, diversified and growing industry in the Fox Cities, he said, without the hazards that are associated with one narrow industry.

Willecke outlined what it would mean to Appleton if a new industry were created or local industry expanded so that 100 new workers were needed. This would bring about 350 more people into the community, including 91 more school children. It would mean 100 more households, $700,000 more personal income per year, $229,000 more in bank deposits, and $330,000 more in retail sales. There would be three more retail establishments, 97 more passenger cars, and 65 more persons employed in nonmanufacturing activities.

Appleton has a good industrial climate, he said, and if we increase industrial establishments in Appleton and the Fox Cities, everyone benefits.

Let's EXPLORE YOUR MIND

By Sylvanus M. Duvall, Ph.D. and Evelyn M. Duvall, Ph.D.

BE EFFICIENT AND REMEMBER EVERYTHING!

WISER □ UNWISER □

Unwise, says the famous Dr. Hans Selye of the University of Montreal. You are wise to write down things you want to have on tap rather than burden your memory with everything of possible value. Keep your mind free for the ideas and facts that are most important to you by not trying to remember too many trivial details. Trying to remember too many things is one reason why you get all tired out in what Dr. Selye calls "stress-fatigue." You are more efficient when you deliberately forget what is unimportant.

This is the basis of the very widely read booklet, "Tensions and How to Master Them." To get your copy, send 25 cents your name and address to this column, in care of this newspaper.

Lesson in English

Words Often Misused: Distinguish between Diverse (different in character; unlike) and the adjective Divers (several; various; more than one). Thus: "Their opinions were completely diverse and." "There were divers articles offered for sale in the bazaar."

Often Mispronounced: Pretense. Accent second syllable, not the first.

Often Misspelled: Effervesce; observe the two "f's" and the "ce."

Synonyms: Annex (verb), add, attach, fasten, affix; subjoin, append, connect, unite.

Word Study: "Use a word three times and it is yours." Let us increase our vocabulary by mastering one word each day.

Today's Word: Dissension; disagreement in opinion. "There was too much dissension among the employees of that firm."

BIG TEN CONFERENCE

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Wisconsin's hopes of finishing in the first division of the Big Ten basketball race were dealt a severe jolt Monday night as the Badgers were humbled 72-48 by the Minnesota Gophers.

The Badgers opened a 6-0 lead at the outset, but quickly cooled off. Minnesota ran up a 35-25 halftime advantage en route to its seventh victory in 10 conference outings.

Wisconsin rallied briefly early in the second half and trimmed the Gopher margin to 37-30. However, the Badgers then went 7½ minutes without a field goal and fell behind 52-34.

The Badgers had one of their poorest shooting nights of the season, scoring on only 28 per cent of their floor shots while Minnesota was cashing in at a clip of 42 per cent.

4-5 in Big Ten
The point production was Wisconsin's lowest since a 51-46 defeat to Arizona and left the Badgers with an 11-7 record, including 4-5 against Big Ten teams. Sophomore center Mel Northway paced the Minnesota attack as he hit a career high of 22 points. Terry Kunze added 15 and Tom McGrann 12.

Ken Siebel was high for Wisconsin with 12 points. Tom Gwyn contributed 11 and Jack Brens 10. The Badgers have plenty of time to improve their shooting this week. They are idle until Saturday when they travel to Chicago to play Illinois in a regionally televised Big Ten clash.

Bobcats Bid For Clincher

Road Games;

GREEN BAY—Still blessed with a 5-game lead despite losing two of three over the weekend, Green Bay's Bobcats today began preparing for a final invasion of Rochester.

The Bobcats, who have won four straight from the defending champions, will try to clinch their first United States Hockey League championship since 1960 against the Mustangs Saturday night and Sunday afternoon.

Rochester could disrupt the Cats' plans somewhat, however, should the Mustangs pull off a sweep this weekend. Such a development would leave the Bobcats with a 19-6 record, Rochester with a 17-10 mark and three games off the pace.

5 Games in Front
A split would all but nail down 1962-63 honors for the Green Bay skaters, who would remain five games in front of the Broncos with only seven games to play.

Bobcat Player-Coach John Mayasich said the return to action of goalie Jim Mattson, injured in Saturday night's game at Des Moines, depends upon the results of a broken collar-bone sustained in last Saturday night's game at Mantowoc.

For McKee, who was able to attend classes Monday, it was the third collarbone break of his career. He suffered one when he was in the fifth or sixth grade and another during his sophomore football season.

McKee also missed part of the '62 football campaign with a hip injury.

A starting guard on the Terror quintet, McKee will be replaced by Paul Schumaker or Jim Bertschy Friday night against Fond du Lac.

Illinois, Ohio State Remain Tied for Lead in Big Ten

Indiana Nips Iowa, 72-71,
To Stay One Game Off Pace

BY JOE MOOSHIL
Associated Press Sports Writer
Going back 57 years to 1906, the present Big Ten conference held its first basketball race. Minnesota won that championship with a 6-1 record.

It was the last undisputed basketball title for the Gophers, who 31 years later managed to share the conference championship with Illinois.

Although Minnesota trails both Ohio State and Illinois by one-half games in the 1963 race, the Gophers can take charge of matters and win themselves another championship.

Minnesota kept pace Monday night with the other contenders, including Indiana, with a smothering 72-48 triumph over Wisconsin. The victory boosted the Gopher record to 7-3, one-half game behind Illinois and Ohio State, who have 7-2 records.

Illinois halted its recent skid with an 87-79 victory at Purdue and Ohio State, cashing in its 46th straight success at home, dumped Michigan State 87-77. Indiana remained one game behind the leaders with a 72-71 victory at Iowa and Northwestern edged Michigan 63-62.

Despite having one more loss than the current leaders, Minnesota appears to have an advantage in the schedule as the conference race nears the finish line.

Minnesota plays three of its last four games at home. More important, if the Gophers can win at Northwestern Saturday, they then meet the other three contenders in succession at Minnesota.

If Minnesota can uphold the home-court advantage in the final three games, the Gophers could make off with the championship. Ohio State, aiming at a fourth straight championship, plays three of its last five games at large berths Monday in the 25-team NCAA field while three acceptances were received for the 12-team NIT at New York's Madison Square Garden.

The NCAA entrants include Loyola of Chicago and New York University, both ranked among the nation's top ten in this week's Associated Press poll.

Loyola, ranked No. 3 with a 22-1 record, will play a first round game in the Midwest regionals. Tenth-ranked NYU, 13-2, is an at-large selection in the East regionals.

Far West Regionals
Colorado State University, 16-4; Texas Western, 16-5 and Oklahoma City, 15-7, were chosen for the Midwest Regionals. Seattle, 17-4; Oregon State, 14-6 and Utah State, 19-5, will take part in the Far West regionals.

The three teams accepting NIT bids were Miami of Florida, 20-4; Providence, 15-4 and Canisius, 14-4. The tournament will be held March 14-23.

Only three at-large positions remain to be filled in the NCAA bracket, two from the East and the other from the Midwest. One

Varied Reactions to New Rule Prohibiting Return Bout Contracts

Authorities Hail Resolution as 'Most Constructive'

TED MEIER
NEW YORK (AP)—"It seems a good idea, yet sometimes it is not."

That terse comment from world heavyweight champion Harry Johnson summed up today the varied reaction to the resolution of the newly formed World Council of Professional Boxing, effective July 1, return contracts for title fights.

The resolution was hailed by Fleischer and Harry Mark, two well known boxing authorities, on their return from Mexico City where the World Council adopted the resolution Sunday night.

The fighters and managers who were involved, however, were more reserved in their views.

Fleischer, editor of Ring Magazine, who has gained a world reputation during his more than 50 years in the sport, declared:

"Long Been Needed"

The resolution banning return contracts has teeth in it and it is long been needed. . . it is the constructive piece of boxing legislation in many years."

Johnson, director of boxing for Madison Square Garden, said the resolution would eliminate what he termed "shotgun contracts."

He explained: "This is when a champion tells a contender he'll fight him a title fight, but he must win a return fight if he loses."

Johnson added: "Suppose a very close fight or the champion has an off night, then he should get a return fight. Otherwise I think it is a good idea. It will open up boxing to more contenders and give people a crack at titles."

James Jones, American representative for Dick Tiger of Nigeria, who defends his world middleweight title against Gene Fullinwider in Las Vegas Saturday, said he felt that a champion should be able to force a challenger to return to him.

Johnson, who lost his crown to Fullinwider in their first bout, said "I don't go along with it. . . I don't want a champion who struggles 50 years to get where he is."

He added that Saturday's fight carried no return clause, but, assuming he won back the title, he would give Tiger a return "if the fight warranted it."

Under the resolution a return bout for a champion losing his title would be permitted only with the approval of the World Council, which shall be given only in the event the losing champion obviously is the most deserving contender or in the event the former champion establishes justification . . . by winning an intervening bout.

Approving the resolution were delegates from the World Boxing Association, the European Boxing Federation, the British Boxing Board of Control, the Latin America Union and the Oriental Boxing Federation, which make up the World Council.

The New York State Athletic Commission did not join the council, but chairman Melvin Krutevich pledged his full cooperation.

Kappell's and Eagles Meet

Both Score Sixth Straight League Wins

KAUKAUNA — As in the first half of City Basketball League play, the stage was set for the final games this weekend as Eagles Club and Kappell's Bar posted wins to meet in the finale with 6-0 records. Kappell's won the first half crown.

The Eagles were leading Gustman's 62-39, Sunday when the latter walked off the floor in the final period and the Eagles were awarded a forfeit win. Bill Borchardt was top scorer for the winners with 15 points.

Kappell's was forced to the limit in taking a 60-43 win from Shamrock Bar. The winners led, 32-23, at halftime and 44-33, at the end of three quarters, but the Irish rallied to narrow the gap in the final period. Jim Steger hit 21 points for the winners, while Jerry Hopfensperger tallied 29 and Tom Geertz 22 for the losers.

Share of Third

Davey's Sports clinched a share of third place by defeating Bowling Bar, 55-45. The winners trailed for three quarters, but a 27-point scoring outburst in the final frame to 10 for the losers spelled the difference. Andy Ebben led the winners with 14 points, including 10 in the final frame, while Jerry Robberson with 13 topped the losers.

Badger Northland had no trouble in handing Thilo's its sixth straight loss, 63-31. Fred Weimuller hit 17 for the winners, and Bill Jahnke had 13 for the losers.

Wilson successfully underwent two brain operations and only last week attendants said he was making progress toward partial recovery.

He is survived by his widow, Rutelva, and nine children and stepchildren. Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at a Long Beach mortuary. Wilson lived at Los Alamitos, near Long Beach.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Dick Hughes of Baltimore, Md., was gunning for a double in his last frame in the regular-division singles competition at the 60th annual American Bowling Congress Tournament. He got it, and as a result he held the lead today with 674 three-game series.

Cowboys Dicker For Cleveland's Jim Ray Smith

DALLAS (AP)—The Dallas Cowboys are trying to talk Jim Ray Smith, Cleveland's all National Football League guard, into playing here next fall.

Smith has told Cleveland he is through, that he will devote his time to the real estate business in Dallas in the future.

But Cowboy General Manager Ted Schramm said Monday he had worked out a tentative plan with Cleveland in which—if Smith decides to play—Dallas can obtain his rights.

Smith, former Baylor star, had decided to retire last year but teammates talked him into one more season with Cleveland.

Prospect of U.S. Paper Is Improved

Britain's Failure to Enter Europe's Common Market Behind Suggestion

NEW YORK (AP)—International prospects of the U.S. paper industry may have been improved by France's veto of Britain's petition to join the European Common Market.

That suggestion was raised by Walter Buchdahl of the U.S. Department of Commerce at a session of Paper Week activities.

Buchdahl, assistant to the director of the European division, said Scandinavian competitors would have had greater tariff advantages if things had happened differently.

If Britain had joined the Common Market, Sweden and Norway would have followed, he said. That would have meant that papermakers from those two countries would have had access to European markets free of tariff and quota restrictions. U.S. makers, meanwhile, would have faced a general external tariff.

As it stands, he said, Scandinavian producers face exactly the same Common Market tariffs that American producers face.

He conceded that Scandinavian producers, as members with Britain of the European Free Trade Association, move into British markets at lower tariff rates than American producers.

But this is still better, from a here-and-now, dollars-and-cents standpoint, than having them as Common Market insiders while America stood outside, Buchdahl said.

He commented that he was speaking chiefly as an individual and not expressing U.S. government views.

He was among speakers at the Export Committee session Monday of the American Paper and Pulp Association. That association, embracing a dozen industry trade groups, is meeting Sunday through Thursday with the American Pulpwood Association and other industry associations in Paper Week sessions that have drawn some 4,000 delegates.

Another speaker was Morris C. Dodrow, president of the Writing Paper Manufacturers Association and industry representative at international trade meetings.

He said the industry will seek to get the Common Market to cut its tariffs against outsiders by half. The United States, meanwhile, should agree to reduce any of its paper tariffs to match. Since most U.S. tariffs are already lower than Common Market levels would be at 50 per cent, however, the United States should resist fresh reductions, he said.

There is a problem that should be faced, however, he said.

"We know from experience in previous negotiations that horse trading frequently develop where one industry is sacrificed for another," Dodrow said. "We would be kidding ourselves if we did not deal with the possibility that all our rates might be reduced by 50 per cent even as low as they are."

The industry will have to make a strong effort to guard against this, he said.

Union delegates that "some self criticism is in order" by farmers.

Patton declared:

"By our lack of self interest, by costly and undisciplined production beyond the capacity of a market to absorb, we have enabled our handlers to grow rich and powerful while we watched four out of 10 of our dairy producers forced to leave their homes and communities."

"By our indifference to market structure development, and sales, we have watched competitive substitutes displace our superior merchandise. By our lack of diligence, we have permitted our cooperative managements to concentrate on operating efficiencies instead of producer returns."

Reynolds' Film Shown Farmers Union Audience

Reaction of 325 Delegates Appeared Generally Favorable

EAU CLAIRE (AP)—Gov. John W. Reynolds' controversial film, made during a budget tour of state institutions, was shown publicly for the first time Monday night at the Wisconsin Farmers Union convention.

Reaction to the film, criticized sharply by Republican legislators for showing the faces of the mentally handicapped appeared generally favorable. Gilbert R. Robde of Chippewa Falls, president of the Farmers' Union, called the reaction "tremendous."

Reynolds, a Democrat, said before showing the film to some 325 delegates and guests at a dinner that conditions at some of the state colonies are "a disgrace to civilized man."

Didn't Know

"People in Nazi Germany said they didn't know what was going on in their institutions," he said. "I know I'll have the support of the people if they know what the problem is."

Comments after showing of the 16-minute film included:

Mrs. Walter Phillippe, Hillsboro—"Very inspiring."

Ray Radke, Beldenville (Pierce County)—"Pretty wonderful."

Arthur Steffen Mauston—"A terrible sight. Sure would hate to be there."

John Olson, Chetek—"A very good demonstration of need. I don't know how you could bring it to the people more."

Mrs. Bert Warneke, Milwaukee—"Very impressive, stirring. It brought out conditions I never dreamed existed."

Patients' Faces

One unidentified woman asked what difference it makes that faces of patients are seen. She said: "Nobody knows who they are, anyway."

National president James G. Patton told the state Farmers' Association:

'Depends on Sparkle'

Miami Students Invent Machine That Measures Kissing Power

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A trio of Miami students have devised a machine that measures the smooching power generated by two people kissing. It's called the kisserometer.

Its creators, including a bouncy 18-year-old brunette, are having a lot of fun with trial runs.

"It all depends on the sparkle inside you," said Tatiana Prilutchi, the only female in her electrical engineering class. "If you feel all tingling inside, your kiss will show it."

John Woods, 21, Chillicothe, Ohio, takes a more pedestrian view. "The kisserometer is purely dependent on the resistance of the kiss. If it is high, the kiss is good. If it is low, the kiss is bad."

Resistance, as used by Woods, is purely a technical term in describing the number of electrons that get through.

The kisserometer is rigged with flashing lights and ringing bells. The lowest quality kiss flashes a sign that says, "Dead fish." A Casanova embrace will register "Wowee." The hottest smooching registers a "Wowee" and clangs a bell.

Machine Works

"The machine works on scientific principles," said Tatiana, of North Miami Beach. "The couple inside the booth hold an electrically charged probe in their hands. It sends a minute amount of electrical current through their bodies. When their lips meet, the circuit is completed."

The rest is up to the couple.

45 Pupils Return to School After Serving Grooming Suspensions

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Forty-five pupils returned to classes at nearby North Hills High School Monday after serving five-day suspensions for what school officials said was improper clothing or hair styles.

E. D. Kruse, supervising principal of North Hills joint schools, reported that four pupils at West View Junior High School and four at Samuel Hamilton Junior High School were given five-day suspensions Monday for the same reasons.

North Hills school authorities last Monday began suspending pupils who, in their opinion, violated the schools' grooming code by wearing tight-fitting skirts or trousers or by having wild hairdos. By the end of the week 71 high school pupils had been suspended.

Effectiveness of Nike Missile Strengthened

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—The effectiveness of the Nike-Hercules missiles guarding Taipei and other parts of North Formosa from air attack has been strengthened by the installation of two new high-power radars, the U.S. Military Assistance Advisory Group announced today.

The Americans said the radars, known as HIPAR, increase the effective range of the missile system and reduce the effect of enemy jamming.

The agency said Mrs. Samkova enjoys good health and reads without glasses.

Outbreaks of Influenza-Like Disease Hits Middle West

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Outbreaks of influenza-like disease, hitting epidemic proportions in some Eastern localities, have spread to the Middle West. Respiratory illnesses have been reported to some degree throughout most of the nation.

New York City has an Asian flu epidemic, but it is not as serious as in 1957 when this particular strain swept across the United States for the first time, said Dr. George James, city health commissioner.

In upstate New York, four 40-bed wards of the Veterans Administration hospital at Buffalo were quarantined because of what a doctor termed an outbreak of an acute, flu-like respiratory infection. It has not been diagnosed as Asian flu. In the Buffalo area, five schools reported 10 per cent absenteeism because of illness.

More than 1,000 new cases a day were reported in West Virginia last week.

Flu-like outbreaks spread in Indiana, Michigan, Kansas and Missouri.

He now weighs 8 pounds, 8 ounces. He was decked out in a jaunty yellow knit cap, a yellow sweater and a matching blanket for leaving the hospital that has been his home.

He gurgled contentedly, the foster parents beamed and nurses kissed him goodbye.

Supreme Court Will Hear Castro's Red Government

Cuba Seeking to Collect Sum of $175,000 From U. S. Citizens

BY ROBERT E. BOYD
Chicago Daily News Service

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court has granted a hearing to Fidel Castro's Communist government of Cuba.

The court issued a writ yesterday that will allow the National Bank of Cuba, an agency of the Castro regime, to appeal a lower court ruling against it.

This means that Cuba can ask the high court to help it collect a claim for $175,000 from American citizens. The claim stems from Castro's nationalization of American-owned sugar properties in Cuba in 1960.

Cuban Claims

Although this particular case involves a Cuban claim against Americans, the outcome could have a great effect on other claims, totaling many millions of dollars, by Americans whose property was seized by foreigners.

The Kennedy Administration, in a brief filed by Solicitor General Archibald Cox, supported the Cuban bank's plea for a Supreme Court hearing.

Without taking sides in the case, Cox said the court ought to settle, once and for all, the "broad and important questions" it raises.

He said the questions are: Whether courts of one country can judge the validity of acts of a foreign government, and if so, by what standards shall they be judged?

Cox said the Cuban bank case is "typical of a large number of pending cases in which the jurisdiction of American courts has been invoked to challenge the validity of foreign nationalization of property."

In this case, "Banco Nacional de Cuba vs. Sabbatini," a New York Federal judge and the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals both decided they had a right to pass judgment on the Castro decree nationalizing American property in Cuba.

Lower Courts

The lower courts held that Castro's decree violated international law, and that Cuba thus had no legal right to the seized property.

Therefore they rejected the Cuban bank's claim for $175,000 representing the value of a cargo of sugar shipped by an American-owned sugar company in Cuba to the United States just after it had been nationalized.

The money is being held by a court-appointed receiver in New York until the dispute is settled.

If the Supreme Court overturns the lower court rulings, the door will be closed for aggrieved property owners to seek redress, in American courts, for losses caused by foreign nationalization.

Reynolds Backs Bill to Acquire Line's Property

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Gov. John W. Reynolds has given his support to a bill which would authorize formation of a state transit right-of-way authority to acquire the property of the abandoned North Shore Line.

The measure would create a body which could purchase rights-of-way extending through more than one county and hold them for possible use by future transit firms.

Ralph Renk, of the civic affairs division of the Association of Commerce, told the Common Council Legislative Committee Monday that the proposal would be introduced into the Legislature with bi-partisan backing on Wednesday. He said the governor had given his support to the plan at a meeting last Thursday.

The North Shore Line, operating between Milwaukee and Kenosha, went out of business last month. Several court actions seeking to revive the line are pending, and a commuters' group has been attempting to purchase the electric railway in order to resume service.

Doctor Says Half of State's Children Lack Proper Immunization

MADISON (AP)—Dr. N. A. Hill, president of the Wisconsin State Medical Society, said Monday that half of the state's school children lack immunization against disease and urged parents, physicians and educators to step up programs to include all youngsters.

Hill, of Madison, told the opening session of the Wisconsin Work Week of Health that "at least half of our children have not been immunized against anything, including smallpox."

He said the recent outbreak of smallpox in England is an example of what can happen when there is a lapse in immunization programs.

The session was the first in a week-long series of meetings sponsored by the medical society at its headquarters.

Scouts Pick Up Only 15 Late Books

HEWLETT, N.Y. (AP)—A Boy Scout is trustworthy, but he can't do the impossible.

Still, a Boy Scout is loyal, so he keeps trying.

Eighteen Boy Scout volunteers were dispatched by the Hewlett-Woodmere Public Library over the weekend to scout for 150 books held by delinquent adult borrowers. The boys blazed a trail across this Long Island community and returned with 15 books.

The librarian, Mrs. Walter Thomson, who knows the problems involved in book-hunting, called the 10 per cent immediate return encouraging. The members of Troop 21 vowed to continue the hunt across the four square miles served by the library over successive weekends.

The scouts gave Mrs. Thomson the following accounting:

12 Borrowers

A dozen borrowers promised to look for missing books; three agreed to pay for lost books; two insisted they had returned the books; a dozen were reported away, and doorbells went unanswered at the other homes.

Robert Osgard Jr., 12, son of the scoutmaster, reported a few anxious moments when he was confronted by a menacing-looking police dog at the home of one borrower.

The owner finally came out, calmed his pet and read the library's explanatory form letter.

He told the boy: "Son, I returned that book a long time ago. I think you've got a fine idea there, though. Keep after the others."

The missing book is "Lolita."

Supreme Court Will Hear Castro's Red Government

Cuba Seeking to Collect Sum of $175,000 From U. S. Citizens

BY ROBERT E. BOYD
Chicago Daily News Service

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court has granted a hearing to Fidel Castro's Communist government of Cuba.

The court issued a writ yesterday that will allow the National Bank of Cuba, an agency of the Castro regime, to appeal a lower court ruling against it.

This means that Cuba can ask the high court to help it collect a claim for $175,000 from American citizens. The claim stems from Castro's nationalization of American-owned sugar properties in Cuba in 1960.

Cuban Claims

Although this particular case involves a Cuban claim against Americans, the outcome could have a great effect on other claims, totaling many millions of dollars, by Americans whose property was seized by foreigners.

The Kennedy Administration, in a brief filed by Solicitor General Archibald Cox, supported the Cuban bank's plea for a Supreme Court hearing.

Without taking sides in the case, Cox said the court ought to settle, once and for all, the "broad and important questions" it raises.

He said the questions are: Whether courts of one country can judge the validity of acts of a foreign government, and if so, by what standards shall they be judged?

Cox said the Cuban bank case is "typical of a large number of pending cases in which the jurisdiction of American courts has been invoked to challenge the validity of foreign nationalization of property."

In this case, "Banco Nacional de Cuba vs. Sabbatini," a New York Federal judge and the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals both decided they had a right to pass judgment on the Castro decree nationalizing American property in Cuba.

Lower Courts

The lower courts held that Castro's decree violated international law, and that Cuba thus had no legal right to the seized property.

Therefore they rejected the Cuban bank's claim for $175,000 representing the value of a cargo of sugar shipped by an American-owned sugar company in Cuba to the United States just after it had been nationalized.

The money is being held by a court-appointed receiver in New York until the dispute is settled.

If the Supreme Court overturns the lower court rulings, the door will be closed for aggrieved property owners to seek redress, in American courts, for losses caused by foreign nationalization.

Reynolds Backs Bill to Acquire Line's Property

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Gov. John W. Reynolds has given his support to a bill which would authorize formation of a state transit right-of-way authority to acquire the property of the abandoned North Shore Line.

The measure would create a body which could purchase rights-of-way extending through more than one county and hold them for possible use by future transit firms.

Ralph Renk, of the civic affairs division of the Association of Commerce, told the Common Council Legislative Committee Monday that the proposal would be introduced into the Legislature with bi-partisan backing on Wednesday. He said the governor had given his support to the plan at a meeting last Thursday.

The North Shore Line, operating between Milwaukee and Kenosha, went out of business last month. Several court actions seeking to revive the line are pending, and a commuters' group has been attempting to purchase the electric railway in order to resume service.

Market Has Population Explosion

Number of Shares Listed on Exchange Grows Mightily

BY SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market has its own population explosion problem. The number of shares listed on the New York Stock Exchange grows mightily. And so, too, during the 1950s did the number of shareholders.

The trouble comes when either a bullish or a bearish enthusiasm seizes so many shareholders that the exchange's recording system is swamped. This leaves all stock owners—some 17 million Americans now by the latest estimate—wondering what happened to the value of their holdings.

There is wear and tear on countless nervous systems, and maybe even some marital spats over the hazy state of the family quotations in time for the usual editions. And the more shareholders the greater the curiosity about how they and their neighbors are faring. Many of the public with a flare for thinking the worst decide the silence means the country may be going to pot.

Tape Late
There is nothing like the word that "the tape is running late," meaning the latest prices aren't available yet, to augment the trend of the market in whichever direction it may have been going when last reported.

The New York Stock Exchange assures its many kibitzers that it is turning to automation to speed the latest prices to the public. Hopefully, in a year or two there won't be any more long waits, as last May and June, to find out what really went on in Wall Street.

The exchange's stock ticker network serves more than 700 cities in the United States and Canada. In his annual report today the exchange president, G. Keith Funston, assures this wide audience that a new printer is being developed that is 80 per cent faster than the present one.

The Teletype Corp. machine may be able to transmit 1,000 characters per minute. This will get the latest prices, once they are recorded, out to the public at a speed that only an avalanche of trading could smother.

Early 1965
To record the transactions International Business Machines Corp. computers equipment will be in operation early in 1965.

An optical reader will electronically speed sales and bid-asked information from the trading floor to the computer. This intricate system will continuously determine total volume, volume for each stock, open high, low, last sale prices and bid-asked quotes.

The exchange says the new system will be able to handle trading volume in excess of 16 million shares a day. On May 29 the volume rose to 14,750,000 shares and the tape ran long after trading closed.

The automated quotation service also will be able to handle 400,000 phone inquiries a day and respond to 150 inquiries for prices simultaneously.

Officials of United Nations Are Disturbed

Reason Is Wide Disapproval of Cuban Farm Project

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Officials of the United Nations are disturbed over the widespread disapproval of that organization's project designed to aid Cuban agriculture. Criticism of the U. N. is being expressed in speeches in Congress by members of both parties.

The incident is significant because it brings to the forefront the difference between officials with a superstate concept and spokesmen for a single country like the United States, which happens nowadays to be footing most of the bill of the United Nations.

U. N. officials are quick to point out that the United States isn't paying any of the expense for the Cuban project itself, but they choose to ignore the fact that the U. N. is nevertheless taking a position decidedly at variance with American policy in the "cold war."

It is pointed out on behalf of the U. N. that, out of $389 million for projects in 98 countries, less than $4 million are for projects which the United States has disapproved. Of the $385 million for approved projects, the countries aided have contributed lands and buildings, valued at $343 million. Of the remaining $42 million, the United States has paid 40 per cent, or about $97 million.

This $97 million comes from American taxpayers. The projects are unquestionably helpful to the countries involved, but the United States is paying more than its proportionate share of the total.

Congo Costs
The same thing is true, moreover, with reference to all U. N. expenses, particularly the cost of the Congo operations. These are largely paid for by the United States. The question asked here is whether the U. N. really wants American co-operation or whether the supranational philosophy of the U. N. staff is going to imperil such co-operation in the future and lose the help of the American Congress.

The argument of the U. N. officials is that their organization cannot be influenced by the national considerations of any country. Cuba, it is insisted, is a member of the U. N. and thus is entitled to all its privileges. But in answer to this, it may be said that the United States is also a member, with the full right to withhold funds for special projects that go for purposes which could defeat American foreign policies.

The point is made in U. N. circles that if a declaration of war existed between Cuba and the United States, this would immediately interrupt any fund-giving or the operations of the U. N. No state of war has, of course, been proclaimed. But U. N. officials overlook the existence of a "cold war" and the fact that billions of dollars are being spent to try to defeat Communist aggression and that American lives are being lost around the world in places like Vietnam in an effort to check the military operations of the Communists. Also, in the last few weeks, there has been revealed a military build-up in Cuba by the Soviets as a forerunner of possible aggression in Latin America.

When the U. N. becomes technical and insists that only a declaration of war can interrupt its help to the Castro regime, the American people, through their representatives in Congress, will also tend to become technical and will insist that no money be voted to the United Nations for projects anywhere under the auspices of the U. N. Our own so-called "foreign aid" program can take over all American assistance to foreign countries without channeling any of it through the U. N. At least the United States would then have some leverage in the situation and have something to say directly about where the projects will be launched.

Fact Remains
The fact remains that the Soviet government has taken over Cuba by conquest from within. A people for whom American soldiers and sailors died a few decades ago, to liberate the island from Spain, have lost their independence. A base has been established in Cuba to take over other Latin American countries. For the U. N. to give financial aid and comfort to the Commun-

Kennedy Briefing Shows Resolution

U. S. Wants to End Communism In Cuba Without Starting War

BY JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's conference Monday night with congressional leaders on communism in Latin America apparently settled nothing. But it illustrated a determination, a paradox and an unpleasant future.

There is a general determination in this country to strangle communism in Cuba, if possible without getting into war with Russia, but certainly to prevent its spread from Cuba to other Latin American nations.

As part of the Western Hemisphere they are the United States' backyard. This country wants no hostile ideology like communism establishing itself so close to home, and for obvious reasons. In time it could provide a Soviet military base as it did in Cuba—which would be the reverse of the American military bases on other continents around the Communist perimeter—and gradually subvert the southern continent.

One Reason
One reason the American determination is so stern against permitting a Red foothold in Latin America is the fact that this country, because of its tremendous military power, has the ability to stop it.

After their meeting with Kennedy the congressional leaders were vague in answering newsmen's questions about the briefing they got. One Democrat said it was just a general intelligence roundup on Cuba.

Another said "things looked a little better." A Republican said he thought the President was just trying to pacify some of his Republican critics. If that's all it was, the dispute will go on.

But the paradox remains. The United States is doing to enhance the reputation of the U. N. inside the United States. The American people perhaps have not given as much attention as they should to the constructive work that has been done also tend to become technical and by the special funds agency of the U. N., which indeed deserves encouragement. But the blunder in Cuba can only retard the continuance of such aid from the United States.

This controversy has not become a partisan matter in Congress. Spokesmen for both political parties have criticized the U. N. action. Senator Frank Church of Idaho, Democrat, Chairman of the Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee which is investigating the controversial U. N. project, points out that Cuba is in arrears in its regular dues payments to the U. N. He says the United States should have protested vigorously against the U. N.'s new project. He declares Cuba is a "special case" for U. N. consideration, because it is being used as a military base by Russia "in violation of the spirit of the U. N. charter."

10 Point Plan Designed to Help Pupils Interested in Better Grades

BY LESLIE J. NASON, ED. D.
Every student is interested in getting better grades. Unfortunately, the area of getting better grades is not discussed in textbooks.

Only the better teachers remind their students of the successful procedures and sometimes even they forget. Every student, whether in elementary, high school, college or graduate school, should check the following procedures. These are the methods that help thousands of students get better grades:

—Helpful Steps—

1) Before the teacher reviews, start your own review.

—Look over each course; try to get a clear idea, perhaps in outline form, of work covered.

—Now you are ready to listen in class and make your final review a polish, not a cram, session.

2) Practice analyzing problems (one of the neglected skills).

—In problem solving courses such as arithmetic, algebra, calculus, physics, or chemistry, leaf through the book from set of problems to set of problems.

Talk over each kind of problem with yourself in words. Ask yourself, "How would I recognize this kind of problem from the way it is written?"

3) Keep your writing muscles in trim through practice.

—From now on spend 10 or 15 minutes per day practicing handwriting. Train your hands to hold the pen without cramping to write easily, rapidly and legibly.

This will improve your grades in fourth grade arithmetic, or help you pass a qualifying examination for a Ph. D.

4) Practice formulating answers. You can draw general questions from the table of contents, or chapter headings.

—Practice writing concise answers. You will be required to do this on tests and the work of the semester seldom gives sufficient practice in concise answers.

5) Keep a list of things you must complete for each course, checking them off as you finish them.

Think of Pictures

6) In modern language, think directly from foreign words to pictures of meaning and from pictures of meaning to foreign words.

7) In studying life science, biology, or anatomy, picture the MEANINGS of all words in your mind.

8) Plan the way you will think during tests. This will avoid tying up or blanking out. —Plan your work rapidly and accurately. Concentrate your attention on one question at a time. Having answered it, turn your full attention to the next question.

9) Write all steps in the solution of a problem. (It is faster than leaving out steps.)
10) Plan to review your tests to eliminate so-called careless errors in sentence structure or spelling. In a language test look for errors in word endings, etc.
These procedures produce increased learning as well as better grades.

German Painting Taken
AIX-EN-PROVENCE, France (AP)—A small painting by the German painter Lucas Cranach the Elder has been stolen from the Granet Museum here.
The painting, missed Monday morning, is a portrait of a young girl, Christiane Eulenaud, dating from late in the 16th century. It was said to be extremely valuable, but no price was set.

Brazilian Marines Told to Board Ship
Hijackers Assured of Asylum; Venezuela Plans to Protest

AMAURY MATTOS
BELEM, Brazil (AP) — Four Brazilian marines left today to board the hijacked Venezuelan freighter Anzoategui off the Brazilian coast. The ship later was reported proceeding south toward port at the mouth of the Amazon River.

Francisco Mereiros Araujo, three sergeants were under orders to take control of the ship in the name of the Brazilian government. Presumably, they had assured the hijackers that they were members of a Venezuelan terrorist organization — there would be no resistance.

Washington, the Defense Department reported, however, that the ship was under way this morning, staying close to shore. It said that the Anzoategui was heading southward toward Belem port is about 240 miles south of Belem.

It was not known whether the hijackers have been promised asylum in Brazil, an action aimed at bringing strong protests to Venezuela.

Our chief aim to prevent the hijacking of Betancourt's ship to the United States was to get it back. He went ahead with the hijacking, a young British scientist said today.

This mystery is the exact shape and makeup of a protein molecule, in three dimensions, down to the precise position of every atom of which it is made.

Dr. H. C. Watson of Cambridge, England, displayed a model made of colored wire and a few wooden balls, looking like something from a child's do-it-yourself kit. It took him two months of full-time work to make it, in order to follow every detail of all the knowledge recently learned about its architecture.

Big Goal of Science
Proteins are the building blocks of flesh, muscles, brain, eyes, nerves, fingernails and organs of humans, as well as the wool and leaves of trees, the fur of animals, every vegetable that grows in short, they are a basic constituent of every living cell. Some 100,000 to one million different proteins exist.

To learn why and how a protein molecule functions has been a prime goal in science. Speaking at the annual meeting of the Biophysical Society here, Watson said the full details of one such protein have been almost completely worked out by a team of scientists at the Laboratory of Molecular Biology, University of Cambridge.

Postgraduate Medical School, in London after the annual meeting of the Biophysical Society in New York Monday. He told the society, by discovering the protein molecule makeup and dimensions of the great mysteries of life is now almost solved, the young British scientist said today.

Power Strike Talks Continue, Federal Mediator Asserts

5 Milwaukee Area Plants Are Picketed; Power Not Interrupted

MILWAUKEE (AP)—A federal mediator said Monday night he had met with both sides in the strike against the Wisconsin Electric Power Co. by Local 317 of Operating Engineers Union and secured an agreement to resume bargaining.

Joseph Piconke said the first meeting in the new round of talks was scheduled for 2 p.m. today.

He had directed a 27½-hour bargaining session that broke up shortly before the local's 900 members struck Sunday afternoon in a contract dispute involving wages, output bonuses and contract termination.

The union posted pickets at the company's five area plants, but power has continued without interruption to the 219 central and southeastern Wisconsin companies served by the utility. Supervisory employees replaced the strikers.

A spokesman for the company said linemen belonging to Local 494 of the Electricians Union did not report for work Monday. However, officers of the local and those of Local 2 of the Officers Workers Union said letters were being sent to members instructing them to honor their contracts and to go to their jobs.

Governor Could Act
The company continued to receive coal to fire generators in two downtown plants as trucks were driven by members of Local 200 of the Teamsters Union. The union drivers stopped their vehicles at curbs outside the plants where they were taken over by company supervisors, driven onto company property, unloaded and returned to the drivers.

Two representatives of the Wisconsin Employment Relations Board met late Monday afternoon with Piconke and company representatives. Morris Slavney and David Anderson of the WERB were present.

Reds Will Remove Soviet Troops From Cuba
WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia has informed the United States that several thousand Soviet troops will be withdrawn from Cuba in the next three weeks, diplomatic informants reported today.

This word from Moscow is understood to have been given to the Kennedy administration Monday through the Soviet Embassy here.

It is understood that President Kennedy's decision to call congressional leaders to a meeting with him Monday night followed that development. The bipartisan group, about a score of legislators, had only two hours notice.

5 Ashen Bodies Tell Story of Bay's Most Ruthless Crime

First Chapter of Ruthless Slaying Written by Killer With .22 Pistol

BY CHARLES HOUSE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer
GREEN BAY — The blood-red front door of the modestly trim white home in the western suburb of Green Bay opened Tuesday on the most grimly shocking murder crime in the history of Green Bay.

Lying in gore, five ashen white bodies told the basics of the first chapter in the story of a crime which by noon Tuesday was winging its way across the world. Dead was "Lucky O'Hara," the nom de plume of Handsome Jack Hebard, and he lay on a divan in blood-soaked, permanent sleep. Powder burns on his head were eloquent; there was a murderer who crept.

Dead also, and killed at shockingly close range in the small rooms were four other persons — Mrs. Hebard, yesterday a trim, pretty vital young woman; John Rudell, 15, her son by a former marriage; and a set of twins, Janice and Judy Rudell, 11.

Absent from the white remodel of farm house was 16-year-old Harry Hebard. Absent, too, was a .22 calibre pistol, the property of the dead man.

"Young Harry is a moody kid," said a neighbor — "kind of quiet and sometimes in trouble with the police. He didn't get along very good with his brother, but he sure likes those little twins."

The Hebard family lived quietly on about two acres of land on rural Hazelwood Lane. Hebard, always fond of cars and engines, supplemented his regular income by playing to county fairs in the Midwest.

"When I was a kid," he told this writer recently, "I kind of hooked up with a daredevil outfit, and I changed my name to Lucky O'Hara because I didn't want my mother to read that her son was in that kind of dangerous business. I always told her I worked as a mechanic."

Dangerous Stunts
One of Hebard's most dangerous stunts was to imprison himself in a breakaway box with dynamite. Clad in protective clothing and a helmet, Hebard would literally dynamite himself into near-insensibility and the breakaway box would smash from the explosion.

"I always loved the feeling of seeming to be reckless," Hebard had told the reporter, "and I like the excitement and the travel and I like the crowds, too."

Tuesday, the crowds gathered at the Hebard home, trim and white, with the blood-red front door — and it was not the kind of a crowd nor the reasons he would have preferred.

Youth Accused of First Degree Murder; Slayings Occurred Monday Evening

Bulletin
GREEN BAY (AP) — A 16-year-old boy accused of shooting his father, stepmother and three other children to death in the family home Monday night was taken into custody about noon today at a farmhouse some 25 miles northwest of Green Bay.

GREEN BAY (AP)—A husband and wife, one son and their two daughters were found shot to death in their secluded home on the outskirts of Green Bay today, and police issued an all points bulletin asking for the arrest of the sixth member of the family, a 16-year-old boy.

Police Chief Elmer Madison said the pickup order was broadcast for Harry "Butch" Hebard, a high school junior with dark, wavy hair.

At 11 a.m. Dist. Atty. Robert Warren issued a warrant charging the youth with first degree murder in the slaying of his stepfather.

Madison identified the dead as Jack Hebard, a 38-year-old employee of North Central Air Lines; Mrs. Joyce Hebard, 35, and three of her children by a previous marriage — John Rudell, 15, and the 11-year-old twins, Judy and Janice.

Madison said that the five apparently were slain before the dinner hour Monday night, but the bodies were not discovered until a fellow employee of Hebard's, Dale Aebischer, passed the family's remodeled farmhouse home and saw that although it was brightly lighted there was no sign of activity.

Woman Calls Police
Aebischer called his wife when he arrived at work, and asked her to call the Hebard home and "make sure Jack was up and would get to work on time."

Mrs. Aebischer called the police and asked them to check. Two detectives went to the home, in a sparsely settled and recently annexed outskirts area, and saw four bodies lying on the kitchen floor.

These, Madison said, were the bodies of Mrs. Hebard, the little girls and John Rudell. Each had been shot once in the temple by what Coroner Cletus Belisle said apparently was a .22 calibre pistol. Such a weapon was missing from a gun rack in the basement.

Hebard's body, clad in slacks and a shirt and partly covered with a blanket, was found on a couch in the living room. He had been shot in the forehead at close range, the coroner said.

Madison said that the family's evening meal still was on the stove and the television set was turned on. The two family cars were at home, one in the garage and one outside, both with their keys in the ignition.

U. S. Prepares To Welcome Betancourt
President Kennedy Orders Parade at National Capital

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy ordered a parade through the heart of the capital today as a special welcome to Venezuela's President Romulo Betancourt, a friend of the United States and a No. 1 Latin-American enemy of Cuba's Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

En route to his meeting with Kennedy, Betancourt received an enthusiastic welcome Monday when he stopped off at San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Without mentioning Cuba by name, he told newsmen, "as long as the Communist beachhead in America is not eliminated, we will be exposed to the risk of sabotage."

Betancourt Chered
He began his trip as headlines focused on the hijacking of the Venezuelan freighter Anzoategui, and vowed Communist attempt to discredit Betancourt and his trip.

Second Fire in Month Hits Home; Baby Perishes

MINERAL POINT (AP)—The second fire in a month broke out in the home of the Gordon Starr family Monday, killing one of four children left alone when their mother stepped out to make a telephone call.

Raymond Lee, three months, perished in the blaze confined to the living room of the two-story frame house. Richard, 4; Jimmy, 3, and Gordon Jr., 1, fled without injury.

Neighbors said that by the time they discovered the infant was still in the house, intense heat made entry impossible.

Fire Chief Ray Marr said the house did not have a telephone, and the blaze broke out while Mrs. Starr was away making a call.

White Collar Group Lure To AFL-CIO

Group Ahead of Manual Workers as Potential Members

BY NORMAN WALKER
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Labor union leaders said today at their winter meetings they are acutely aware that white collar workers are far outstripping manual workers as potential union members in the American job market.

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz planned to meet during the day with members of the AFL-CIO Executive Council on current problems, including what Wirtz has said is a trend begun in 1956 for technical workers teamed with machines to outstrip craftsmen.

Minority Status Feared
Organized labor in the AFL-CIO has been worried for some time over the prospect that unionized American workers will become increasingly a minority group with declining political and social influence.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, has charted a pilot organizing drive in Los Angeles. Walter Reuther, an AFL-CIO vice president and head of the Auto Workers Union, who is regarded as a Meany rival, has scheduled much more ambitious campaigns in other areas.

Wirtz, here for a huddle with the labor leaders, has said that white collar workers, after outnumbering blue collar workers for the first time in 1956, steadily have built up a numerical superiority.

Despite the increasing population and work force, there were about a half-million fewer factory production workers in 1962 than in 1947—a period in which factory output rose by 80 per cent.

Sheboygan Man Killed During Florida Storm

Gave Life for Hers

Girl Tells How Speeding Car Killed Boy After He Pushed Her to Safety

BY DIAL TORGERSON
LOS ANGELES (AP)—"He was my first serious boy friend," said Paulette Lewis, 15. "We had been going steady one month and 12 days."

Paulette told Monday, between tears, of the moment David Brimley sacrificed his life for hers as they walked, hand-in-hand, across an avenue near their homes.

Stop Light Ignored
Suddenly a car roared through a red light, glanced off another auto, and hurtled, brakes squealing, at Paulette and David.

"David shouted, 'Look out,' and he gave me a push," Paulette said. "I think he tried to run, but when I recovered my balance, I couldn't see him."

Miss Lewis Brimley

David, 17, who had just gotten his first job and enrolled in his first college course, was hurled 150 feet to his death.

The careening car slid into a power pole and halted. Three young men jumped out and ran. College and had obtained a part-time job, his first, as a drugstore delivery boy.

He walked down the street, I walked down there and found him lying at the curb."

Police drove her home after the accident Sunday night. Her mother, Jean Lewis, called a doctor. He treated the pretty, blonde 10th grader with sedatives.

Police also went to tell David's mother, Lillian Armstrong, a few doors away.

She told a newsman later how her son had just enrolled as a math major at Santa Monica City College and had obtained a part-time job, his first, as a drugstore delivery boy.

First Assignment Goes to Committee

Personnel Unit Hasn't Met Since It Was Organized Last October

A committee of the Outagamie County Board, which has never met since it was set up by ordinance last October, may soon get some responsibility.

When the county board set up the personnel committee, the intention, according to County Board Chairman Alvin Fulmer of Kimberly, was to have the group serve as an appeal committee to handle all personnel problems.

However, after meeting this morning with the benefits committee of the Courthouse Employees Association, the county board's executive committee decided that no definite procedures for responsibility were assigned to the new group.

Wants Appeal

The Courthouse Employees Association wants the personnel committee to act as an appeals group when they fail to get action on a grievance with the civil service and salary committee.

Although spokesmen for the employees group refused to state this morning just what grievance has been giving them problems, they claim that some matters which have been brought before the civil service and salary committee haven't received any attention for as much as six months.

A resolution will be submitted as a result of today's discussion, definitely setting up the personnel committee as an appeal group on personnel problems.

The executive committee decided it would recommend to the county board that if the civil service and salary committee fails to act on any petition involving personnel grievances within 30 days of the time the petition is filed, the petitioners may appeal to the personnel committee.

Also, if the civil service and salary committee makes an unsatisfactory decision, the petitioners still may make an appeal to the personnel committee.

Cummings Chairman

Supv. J. Joseph Cummings (Appleton 3rd) is chairman of the personnel committee.

Supv. Sylvester Esler (Appleton 18th) heads the civil service and salary committee.

The Courthouse Employees Association serves as a bargaining agent for county employees which are not unionized.

Fulmer, who serves as chairman of the executive committee, said the purpose of the resolution, which will be submitted to the county board in March, will not be to change the intent of the committee but to set up some procedures.

Probation for Ohio Resident

Defrauded Brillion Farmer Out of Load Of 80 Turkeys

CHILTON — The Cincinnati man who defrauded a rural Brillion turkey producer out of 80 turkeys was placed on probation and was ordered by Judge D. H. Sebora to make restitution.

Robert Gohs, 38, pleaded guilty of intent to defraud during an earlier appearance in Calumet County Court but sentencing was delayed until a presentence investigation could be completed by the state department of public welfare.

Judge Sebora originally sentenced Gohs to a three-year term in the State Prison at Waupun but stayed execution of the sentence, ordering a similar probationary period instead.

1961 Charge

Gohs' recent arrest by Calumet County authorities after his release from prison at Waupun stemmed from his September, 1961, dealings with Roman Jodar, Brillion. Gohs picked up a load of 80 turkeys from Jodar promising that a check would be forthcoming from the firm Gohs claimed he represented.

The birds were valued at $800 and restitution was set at that amount.

Since the incident at Brillion, Gohs has served prison terms in the Ohio state penitentiary and the Wisconsin State Prison for worthless check charges originated by the cities of Cincinnati and Kenosha, respectively.

UW Tries Speedy Experiment For Undergraduate Students

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The University of Wisconsin's first effort to accelerate its undergraduate teaching schedule will probably come next summer with the launching of an experiment in a longer session of study designed especially for freshman and sophomore students.

A plan for a 12-week summer session is included in the University's budget of appropriations now being reviewed by the legislature.

The objective will be to test the willingness of students to enroll for a more rapid teaching schedule, which would permit them to acquire their degrees in a shorter time, and at the same time allow a more economical use of the school's staff and other resources at a time of critical budgetary regular term enrollments.

Resistance

Former Gov. Nelson among others had pressed the state institutions of higher learning for such modifications of their traditional programs, but there had been some doubt and resistance among the school administrators.

Many University officials have pointed out that because the typical university undergraduate works during the summer recess period, the attraction of students to a summer session of study would not be great.

Next summer's experiment will tell. The 12-week summer program would permit a student who attended for three regular terms, and three summer periods, to get a degree in three years instead of four.

Three Fined $15 for Disorderly Conduct

CLINTONVILLE — Three men were fined $15 each on disorderly conduct charges following their arrest early Sunday morning by the Clintonville police.

They were Marvin Neil Haubrich, 37, Clintonville; Wilburn Ross Dunaway, 18, route 3, Helmer, Tenn.; and Leonard J. Fleming, 30, Clintonville.

It was reported the trio created a disturbance in a local restaurant, and later were disorderly at a Clintonville residence at which time the police were called. The three men were taken to the Clintonville jail and later Sunday morning posted bonds and were released.

Their bonds were forfeited Monday when they failed to appear in court before Municipal Justice Nathag Wiese.

Reassessment Again Topic For Chilton City Council

Clerk Reports He Has Received Cost on Having Professional Help

CHILTON — Reassessment is proceeding with reassessment. It was again expected to command the attention of the city's aldermen at tonight's city council meeting.

City Clerk Arthur Pohland, stated, Pohland said he has received several cost proposals from appraisal firms, which will be presented at the session. He was instructed at the Feb. 5 council meeting to contact some of the professional reassessment companies and secure the cost information. A 1962 budget appropriation set aside $9,000 to carry out the work.

The exact status of the controversial measure still hasn't been determined. The action taken at the last meeting carried the appearance of being an exploratory rather than a firm decision to proceed with reassessment. It was sponsored by Ald. Miles Agee and received the support of a council majority in the voting.

Haunts Aldermen

For more than 1 1/2 years the issue has been haunting aldermen. In November, 1961, the council adopted resolution No. 1 clearing the way for reassessment. The late Carl W. Hofmeister, mayor, was a leading figure in the drive for total and professional reappraisal of real and personal property.

The resolution, the first step of a legal process to bring about reassessment, was then sidetracked in a mixup by the State Department of Taxation and the resolution was not acknowledged until March, 1962. This was too late for action on the new tax roll.

After Hofmeister's death, the issue was tabled until recently revived by Ald. Raymond Jensen.

Withdraw Motions

On two occasions, Jensen presented motions to proceed with the reappraisal but withdrew both times before a vote when opposition developed.

One more resolution is required before the measure becomes official. It specifies the name of the appraisal firm, the cost of the work and an outline of the program to be carried out. This must be adopted by the council and approved before reassessment is finally authorized by the state department of taxation.

New London May Soon Have A Trailer Park

City Council Hears About Future Project At Monday Meeting

NEW LONDON — The city may soon have a trailer park, it was disclosed at Monday night's committee meeting of the city council.

One of the councilmen told the council Erel McPeak has started proceedings to plan a trailer park north of the city on U.S. 45 near the Go-Kart Track, which also is owned by McPeak.

Mayor Wilmer Schaefer suggested to the council that only one committee meeting to discuss bills be held each month instead of each Monday night prior to a council meeting. The bills for the city would then be paid only once during a month, he added.

A discussion on added sewer service to the north and the south part of the city was also held. Mayor Schaefer told the council that he thought the proposed planning program of the city would answer this question and other questions about the growth of the city.

St. Cloud Wins, 48-46

St. Mary Grade '5' Loses Championship

CHILTON — The St. Mary Knights dropped the Eastern Wisconsin Grade School Conference championship playoff contest to St. Cloud, 48-46, in a triple overtime Sunday.

Don McHugh tallied 25 points to take contest scoring honors, and led the Knights to a 34-34 deadlock after regulation playing time. The first overtime period ended in a 40-all tie and the score was knotted at 44-44 after the second overtime period.

The Knights, short-handed with two starters, Nick Schneider and John Hauser, lost via the personal foul route, managed to score only two points in the final overtime while St. Cloud scored four. The loss was only the third this season for the St. Mary quintet but all three have been at the hands of St. Cloud. St. Mary won the Northern Division title with a 10-0 mark while St. Cloud capped the Southern Division crown, also at 10-0.

St. Mary has won 17 overall, including four in the St. Mary, Fond du Lac, invitational tournament, where the Knights placed third among the 22 teams. St. Cloud, which capped the tournament title, defeated Chilton in the semi-finals. The other loss for St. Mary was in the league tournament where the two division titlists met in the finals.

One more tournament remains for the Knights. They will enter the Holy Rosary Invitational at New Holstein this week.

City Not Obligated to Keep Runways Open During Winter, Airport Chairman Declares

WAUPACA — The State Department of Aeronautics' recent "get tough" with Waupaca policy on keeping the Waupaca Airport open for year-around flying was answered Monday by Judge Wendell McHenry, chairman of the city's airport committee.

Mayor Lloyd Matheson received a telegram from the state board, stating in effect, the city must keep the runway plowed or face possible recovery action by the state for state and federal funds used at the airport.

Judge McHenry said he suggested having City Atty. Laurie Anderson write to the state board to determine under which state or federal ruling "we are obligated."

"We know there is nothing in the contract that obligates the city to plow the snow in the winter for a few itinerant fliers," he added.

Judge McHenry said he talked to a member of the state board shortly after the first snowfall this winter. "I told him Waupaca does not have a rotary plow and can not justify buying a plow because the traffic never amounts to anything at the airport even when the city had an active airport," he continued.

"I told him I hoped the traffic would increase to such a degree as to justify such a purchase," he added.

'Not Severe'

Judge McHenry explained that the expense of keeping the runway plowed would not have been too severe this winter but indicated last year's snow removal "would have been terrible."

Judge McHenry maintained it would be impossible to plow the snow off the runway with a conventional type plow because of the newly installed lights.

He indicated a state plan to plow the snow into the middle of the runway and then have it hauled away would be an expensive undertaking.

"They had never indicated we were obligated to keep the airport open all year when they talked of improving the airport," the judge pointed out.

A story from the Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Saturday indicated the ultimatum to Waupaca would serve as a warning to other counties and cities with airports subsidized by state and federal funds.

The entry was made sometime between 5 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. Monday. Reported missing were four 6.40x15 black recapped tires valued at $59.72.

The Clintonville police were called, who called the Waupaca County sheriff's department to investigate.

Amherst Girl Named Dairy Queen at School

AMHERST — Diane Suski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Suski, was chosen dairy queen at the annual dairy week celebration of Amherst High School.

Miss Suski was crowned at the Amherst-Wautoma basketball game by Mike Peplinski, president of the FFA chapter. Other contestants were Beverly Wroblewski, Carol Patoka, Karen Carey and Rose Glorowski.

Don Love, Green Bay, to the effect "they come down here banging the doors to get money for an airport, and then they can't keep them open for use." Judge McHenry said the state was after Waupaca.

"They were after us for years to put the improvements in. They came down every year and asked us to improve the airport," Judge McHenry said.

Judge McHenry said the city has paid about $15,000 for the airport since it was established here.

The new lights were installed recently at a price of about $1,600 of which the city paid half and the state the other half.

Runway Completed

The biggest improvement to the airport was completed last summer when $55,000 was spent for paving the 2,900-foot runway at a width of 75 feet. The federal government paid half, the state one-fourth and the city one-fourth.

"We never had any intention of keeping the airport open all year. It would be an unnecessary and useless expense on taxpayers," Judge McHenry said.

National Guard Armory to be Built in '63

Appleton Assured By State Officials On $500,000 Project

A new Wisconsin National Guard armory and vehicle maintenance center to serve the entire Fox Cities region will definitely be constructed in Appleton this year.

Confirmation of previous reports that the proposed $500,000 armory would be built in this city came today from Maj. Gen. Ralph J. Olson, adjutant general for the State of Wisconsin.

Gen. Olson said the construction timetable received a setback when federal authorities announced recently that regular army, reserve and national guard divisions would be reorganized.

"There has been no change in our plans as far as the new armory is concerned," Gen. Olson said.

(Several months ago when national guard officials disclosed they were interested in building a new armory in this area, the Appleton Common Council and Mayor Clarence Mitchell approved allocation of 22 acres of land in the industrial park for the proposed facility. It would serve national guard units in Appleton, Neenah, Menasha and surrounding areas.)

"Until we know what effect the reorganization of the 32nd Division will have, start of the armory facility will have to be delayed," Gen. Olson explained. He said the allocated personnel strength of the units throughout the Fox Cities region will have a role in determining the size of the armory and service center.

The Appleton armory is first on the list of new armories to be built in Wisconsin during 1963. Officials have indicated it may be the second largest facility of its kind in the state outside of Milwaukee.

In addition to the armory, a separate service center will be erected for servicing and maintaining vehicles, ordnance and other equipment.

Private Industry Told to Sell Appleton, Americanism

NAM Speaker Says System of Free Enterprise Needs Backing

BY DICK LYNEK

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Representatives of private industry were advised Monday to sell Appleton and to sell Americanism "before we all get sold down the river."

Speaking to the Lions Club at the Conway Hotel, Dr. Neal Bowman, a professional speaker with the National Association of Manufacturers and a former professor of marketing at Temple University, Philadelphia, said, "The big trouble with private enterprise today is that it is too private."

He admonished the group for not talking enough about the community where they live and for not selling the American system as opposed to the Communist system.

"When I go to Texas," Dr. Bowman said, "I meet people who have no compunctions about their sales psychology."

"The trouble with most of us, is that we spend too much time griping and give too little thought to grouping."

Salutes Industry

In keeping with the "Salute to Industry Week" theme, since the Appleton Chamber of Commerce has designated this week as "Salute to Industry Week," Dr. Bowman said that selling Appleton should be more than just a charm

Benefits of Industry Told To Optimists

Yearly Payroll Amounts to Over $36 Million Locally

Gerhard K. Willecke, director of research at Miller Electric Manufacturing Co., presented checks for $36,351,572 to members of the Appleton-Neenah Optimist Club Monday.

The checks were made out to "Employees on Annual Industrial Payrolls" of Appleton, and signed by the Salute to Industry committee.

Willecke's speech was one of a series planned by the Appleton Chamber of Commerce during Salute to Industry Week. The industrial climate benefits everyone, and it is everyone's business, he said.

Defines Industry

Willecke defined industry as "man's activity in the process of adding value to material." During 1961, he said, $200 million in raw materials were brought into the Fox Cities, and $515 million in finished products were sent out. This means that nearly $315 million stayed in the Fox Cities, he said. From this, Appleton industries paid real estate taxes totaling more than $800,000, and wages of almost $700,000 every week, for an annual total of $36,351,572.

We are fortunate in having a stable, diversified and growing industry in the Fox Cities, he said, without the hazards that are associated with one narrow industry.

Willecke outlined what it would mean to Appleton if a new industry expanded so that 100 new workers were needed. This would bring about 350 more people into the community, including 91 more school children. It would mean 100 more households, $700,000 more personal income per year, $229,000 more in bank deposits, and $330,000 more in retail sales. There would be three more retail establishments, 97 more passenger cars, and 65 more persons employed in nonmanufacturing activities.

Appleton has a good industrial climate, he said, and if we increase industrial establishments in Appleton and the Fox Cities, everyone benefits.

ber program, "It should be a whole community effort."

"We all have competition, and every group that takes a position has opposition. Competition is the incentive to prove and improve," he said.

"What I want to do today is to provide food for thought, because we're all fed food-wise, but underfed fact-wise. This leads to our big problem, which is economic illiteracy — something which we must all fight."

"Economic illiteracy" is what makes democracy impossible and autocracy probable. In these days of world problems and national economic problems, we are ignoring the number one weapon in our arsenal which is facts."

Dr. Bowman "spelled out" facts as being "F-facts, A-analysis, S-conclusions from analysis, T-testing, and S-solutions."

"But," too many people just will not get the facts.

"Our battlefield is the arena of public opinion. We must influence the influential and get the influential to use their influence."

Have Freedoms

"We have many freedoms in this country such as freedom of worship, work and freedom of expression," he pointed out.

"Freedom of expression is where we fail, and suppression of impressions is the pitfall of democracy."

"At times everyone must be heard 'so stand up and be counted. Tell what makes America and what America makes' he said."

"Tell what makes Appleton and what Appleton makes."

Dr. Bowman praised the state of Florida for "the communistic system vs. the American system" taught in its public schools.

"Remember, that we are just one rocket away from destruction. Communism is so real that it cannot be denied."

"Give them one inch, and they want to be rulers. If we don't wake up, we'll break up. If we don't outsell communism, we'll have to abandon Americanism."

"We're fighting against pitch men who are trying to sell a red package at the expense of freedom," he stressed.

"We must remember that the industrial worker is the only irreplaceable part of our whole economy."

He said the industrial worker must be convinced that profit is not an ugly word for industry. "Without profit, we're dead. The only security in the world today is to work for an organization that makes a profit."

He pointed out that $33 billion was spent last year by the federal government for welfare programs.

"We are spending $17,490 every minute just to pay the interest on our national debt."

Five M's

The speaker explained the "Five M's" necessary to make the American economy work — manpower, money, management, market and motivation.

Under management, Dr. Bowman stressed that "the greatest responsibility of management is to make a profit to help our whole economy."

In conclusion, the speaker described America as "the greatest of young nations and the youngest of the great nations. Our forefathers use work and understanding to make a wonderland out of a woodland."

"Let's go out and talk about America before it is too late. And do the same for Appleton," he concluded.

Bishop, Auxiliary Announce Schedule in Area Parishes

A series of Confirmation appointments which started Sunday and will continue until June 23 has been announced by the Green Bay Diocesan chancery office.

The appointments include the schedules for both the Most Rev. Stanislaus V. Bona, bishop of the Green Bay Diocese, and the Most Rev. John B. Grellinger, auxiliary bishop.

The unusually long series of spring confirmations has been made necessary by the fact that both bishops will attend the second session of the Vatican Council, beginning Sept. 8. There will be no fall confirmations in the diocese this year.

Last Schedule

The spring schedule in the Fox Cities area for Bishop Grellinger includes St. Joseph and Sacred Heart parishes, Oshkosh, Feb. 17; St. John, Oshkosh, 3 p.m. Sunday; St. Vincent, Oshkosh, 7:30 p.m. Sunday; St. Peter, Oshkosh, 7:30 p.m. March 7; St. Mary, Chilton, 7:30 p.m. March 10; St. Mary, Stockbridge, 7:30 p.m. March 24; St. Theresa, Appleton, 7:30 p.m. March 31; St. Mary, Menasha, 7:30 p.m. April 18; St. John, Menasha, 7:30 p.m. April 25; St. Pius X, Appleton, 3 p.m. May 12; Holy Cross, Kaukauna, 7:30 p.m. May 15; St. Augustine, Chilton, 3 p.m. May 19; St. Mary, Kaukauna, 7:30 p.m. May 26; St. Mary, Black Creek, 7:30 p.m. June 9; and St. Denis, Shiocton, 7:30 p.m. June 16.

The schedule for Bishop Bona includes St. Francis, Hollandtown, 7:30 p.m. March 18; St. Nicholas, Freedom, 3 p.m. May 19; St. Paul, Wrightstown, 7:30 p.m. May 19, and St. John, Seymour, 7:30 p.m. May 20.

Aid to Private Schools

President Kennedy's aid to education bill again this year made no provisions for assistance to parochial or other private schools. Possibly the President has leaned over backwards because of his own Roman Catholic faith in not wanting to tackle what is obviously an explosive and highly controversial subject. But support for some kind of help for private schools has come from other sources.

Congressman John Byrnes has proposed a tax deduction for parents for tuition to private schools, a means which would help ease the burden upon the taxpayer and indirectly might help the schools in that they could raise tuitions. The bill would also avoid any possible violation of the separation of church and state. But it would also seem that this separation ought to be looked at a little more carefully.

Professor Carl Degler, a non-Catholic professor of history at ultra-liberal Vassar College, argues that federal aid is given to all sorts of religious institutions in one way or another. This is obviously true either through tax exemptions or direct payments. Chaplains in the armed forces, chapels at military bases, funds which are available to hospitals owned and operated by religious orders are all ways in which the federal government is directly helping religions.

Although education has been the stumbling block, Professor Degler points out that United States Supreme Court decisions have emphasized that children cannot be forced to attend public schools. In a 1944 decision it stated that "it is cardinal with us that the custody, care and nurture of the child reside first in the parents, whose primary function and freedom include preparation for obligations the state can neither supply nor hinder." The Court has also ruled that public funds used for bus transportation or providing textbooks for children in parochial schools is not a violation of the First Amendment.

But Degler's main argument as to why public funds should be made available to parochial schools is because he thinks it "makes social sense." He points out that a sixth of American school children go to Roman Catholic schools and they are increasingly crowded. Unable to provide enough religious order members to teach, they must go into the market place for lay teachers. More often than not they do not get the best because they do not pay as well. The parents of children in many local parochial schools know that there are too many students in many of the elementary grades for top grade instruction.

Better educational opportunities for all children are a benefit to the nation as a whole. The very real—and very needed—efforts of some Catholic educators to upgrade the scholastic standards of their institutions should be lauded by Americans of every or no faith.

Since we believe that school costs should be met by the states, it would be necessary to change Wisconsin's Constitution if public funds were ever to be used for parochial schools in this state. At present this is a legal impossibility.

But we think it is high time that Catholics and non-Catholics begin to look more seriously and, if possible with less prejudice, at the problems of public and parochial education. Catholics should take care that they do not attempt to press their own ideas upon others as they unfortunately did in the prayer in the schools case. And non-Catholics should recognize that better educational opportunities for everyone means not only less indoctrination which they fear, but a better educated electorate and even the possibility of a better government.

Trusting People Saves Money

How much money can be saved by trusting other people is being dramatically demonstrated by the Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Co. On any purchases the firm makes of less than $1,000, it sends a blank signed check with the purchase order and the supplier fills in the amount of the purchase and cashes the check.

The company thus has eliminated a vast amount of paper work in filing, retrieving, posting, check writing, stuffing, mailing and typing. There is no rush to meet a 10-day discount deadline. The deal is closed immediately.

According to the purchasing director the idea is based on the reasonable assumption that Kaiser suppliers are honest and want to keep on doing business with the company. There's nothing to prevent someone kiting the payment, but this would be spotted when the cancelled check is matched with the original order by a computer. "No one would get a chance to do that to us twice," the official said.

Can We Control War?

Dr. Paul Ramsey, head of the Department of Theology at Princeton University, recently spoke to the Lawrence College student body on the need for "controlled" war in this nuclear age.

Dr. Ramsey is no peace at any price advocate. On the contrary his development of the "forces-counter forces" idea of conflict is based upon a realization and even an insistence that war cannot be completely avoided. A recognition and acceptance of this fact, he preaches, is essential in trying to control war.

On the moral plane Dr. Ramsey has pointed out that war against noncombatants as part of the means of waging war is wholly indefensible. However, he differentiates this type of war from the incidental or accidental involvement of noncombatants in what he feels to be a just type of warfare waged against military forces or military establishments. Planned terrorism of civilians and the bombing of open cities are cited as examples of unjust war.

But Dr. Ramsey also stresses that in this nuclear age such warfare is also irrational in that such destruction can be retaliated to the suicide of a nation or a culture. The so-called "stability" in the situation today between the Soviet Union and the United States in which we seem to have reached a balance of terror because our weapons are nearly equal is no safeguard for the future, according to Dr. Ramsey, because of the technological experiments and advances which we must expect on both sides. The only way then to reduce the danger of nuclear holocaust is a determination not to wage war upon noncombatants no matter what the inducement.

Whether or not such a determination could be maintained through the passion and hatred of a hot war—especially by a side that seemed to be losing—is dubious. There is also the possibility that now that we have accepted the use of indiscriminate bombing of open cities as we did in World War II we would have trouble in reverting to what Ramsey calls "just" war. It would be easy enough to rationalize the bombing of Russian children to save the world from communism as the bombing of German children was deemed permissible to save us all from Hitler.

The fact that would have to be stressed to the general public then would be the surety of direct retaliation against our own cities. But the real motive for not using a nuclear warhead against open cities would have to be a moral decision.

Dr. Ramsey may be talking in vain. And yet as long as there are leaders in the world so tremendously concerned about the immense responsibilities of the individual in an "other-directed" society we can continue to take heart.

Looking Backward

Weather Report of Century Ago

100 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Motor for Feb. 19, 1963.

The weather, for several days, has been quite balmy and spring-like. The rapid disappearance of the short-lived sleighing season is to be regretted.

The opening of the sugar (maple) season, however, will be a great consolation. These sunny days, if well stuck to, are certain to inaugurate a motley collection of camps. Just count on the consolation of sweet sugar, albeit we are modestly conscious of being sweet enough already.

It is rather damp aloft as we move to press, although the snow birds appear to take a dissenting view of the matter. Possibly, the failure of their crops compels them to put up with what they can get.

5 YEARS AGO

Monday, Feb. 13, 1958

Frank Eisch, Appleton, won his first bout in the Golden Gloves boxing tournament in Green Bay a previous night. Earl Otto, Appleton, was scheduled to wrestle in the show at the S. A. Cook Armory the next night, opposing Rowdy Poca of Kimberly.

A red-hot, lunch-hour darts tournament was in progress at Appleton Machine Company, two teams playing each day with the rest of the men in the cheering section. The four competing teams had the following managers: Walter Ecker, Wayne Rohan, Barney LeMoine and Frank Van Rossum. Top men in the batting department were Ecker, first, Dominic Grishaber, second, and LeMoine, third.

Helmut Ehrenreich was elected commander of the Norris Spencer Post, American Legion, at New London. Henry J. Hoffman was named vice commander to succeed Ehrenreich in that office.

New officers of the 9-L class at Wilson Junior High School, Appleton, were James Miller, president, Beverly Olson, vice president, William Frawley, secretary, and Eugene Kiloren, treasurer.

18 YEARS AGO

Tuesday, Feb. 17, 1953

Miss Sandy Stillman and James Sutherland were crowned king and queen of the Heart-string Hop at Appleton High School. Tom O'Brien and Miss Nancy Neidhold were emcees for the program of the Valentine dance.

Walter J. Dougherty Jr., Menasha, was promoted to the rank of first lieutenant while serving in engineering corps in Korea. The serviceman's father was city clerk of Menasha.

A $40,000 fire at 1:10 a. m. that day destroyed the Gamble Hardware Store in Kaukauna. Firemen brought the blaze under control after fighting it for four hours in zero weather.

Eight Boy Scouts chosen to serve as honorary city officers in Appleton were Jim Davis, mayor, George Rehbein, clerk, Jerry Smith, treasurer, Tom Sterling, assessor, David Treiber, engineer, Tom Meyer, attorney, Perry Leseslyong, police chief, Jerome Ducat, fire chief.

Idea That Government Can Do It Cheaper Is Hotly Disputed

Editor, Post-Crescent:

The author of an article appearing in the People's Forum Feb. 12 concerning the county's purchase of a hot mix plant indicates a strong interest in saving tax dollars for the citizens of our county and to this I add my hearty Amen! It goes without saying that the people of all economic means share his desire to pay less taxes. It seems to me, though, the way to cut taxes is not through penalizing private enterprise, but rather by eliminating unnecessary spending by government; where possible, and adhering to the principle that the government should perform only those functions which we, as individuals, cannot perform for ourselves. You see, the less jobs we ask the government to do for us, the less we need to pay the government for performing those jobs. It's simple arithmetic.

Now let's take a longer look at this tax problem. Private business pays taxes just as we individuals do. Each time we discourage a business from making an additional investment in plant and equipment, or encourage a business to close its doors because of competition from government, we, as individuals, lose valuable assistance in helping to meet the cost of operating our government. Every time we lose a tax dollar paid by a business we must each in turn pay a larger amount of taxes as our share.

Actually the free enterprise system has been very good to us. It has given us Americans the highest standard of living by far than that of any other country in the world, with a promise to do even better for us, if we will allow it to do so. A striking example of how a free competitive society at work can save the taxpayers money is the fact that the people of Appleton are getting a new parking ramp at a cost somewhere around $150,000 less than the planners had anticipated we would have to pay for it. This quote appeared in the Feb. 6 Post-Crescent: "Bidding was exceptionally keen on the general construction," commented W. T. Collings, Milwaukee, the city's Parking Structure Consultant. "The city got some very good prices here today," he added. End of quote. Need it be said that each of these $150,000 saved by free competitive bidding represent a lightening of the load that each individual must pay.

Business conditions are such today that competition is very intense, and there is no need for government to add to this competition. One could easily learn this lesson by venturing his hard earned savings into a business enterprise. It would make believers out of doubters in a hurry. That government can perform these functions more economically than free competition, I strongly question.

The theory that a little more government activity won't hurt anything is a misnomer, because the growth of government activity doesn't stop with just a little bit. Where do you draw the line on both local as well as state and federal government expansion? If it were true that the county's purchase of a hot mix plant would be good for the county, doesn't it follow that there must be many other areas in which government could compete just as effectively, possibly even at the expense of your job if your company should lose contracts to this new "low cost" competition? Do we say that there is too much government competition only when it affects our jobs directly or should we see long in advance, that every time government takes over another function which we can perform for ourselves, we are the ultimate losers in many ways?

In an age when our college professors and business men are saying that many of our young men and women are not interested in "what can I do to get ahead," but rather "what is the easiest way to an early pension," it seems to me that we should not penalize those who do have enough initiative to take a chance in this still fine country of ours.

We are still a free society with a choice between letting government do things for us or doing them for ourselves. Let's make the right choice.

Meter Maids Should Check Illegal Parking in Stalls

Editor, Post-Crescent:

Reference, the letter on parking meters by Disgusted Visitor:

I read your article about parking and meter maids in Appleton. I agree with your article about parking. Also I would like to say that sometimes these meter maids are out of order, at times you will only get about five minutes parking for your nickel.

If these meter maids would look to see how some drivers park in these stalls and give them a ticket, most drivers are parking illegal so some one else cannot get in the next stall, then

I would say they are doing their duty.

I agree with this disgusted visitor about the city being so hungry for these pennies and nickels that they pay these meter maids to be sure they get every one even if you park one minute overtime.

Our business merchants should get together uptown to see if something more reasonable can't be worked out about this parking situation or else every shopper should do their shopping where there are no meters to contend with.

Reynolds' Minimizing Of His State Budget Deceptive Arithmetic

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — An ineradicable and often effective habit of the politician when he is on the defensive on a spending issue is to translate the tax consequences into the tiniest of multiples.

Thus Gov. Reynolds, defending his record-high budget with its extraordinarily liberal policies before the legislature last week, casually translated the tax result into a figure of 2 1/2 cents weekly for the average inhabitant of Wisconsin, or per capita, as the economists would put it.

He could have said, as bureaucrats sometimes say under similar circumstances, that it would cost the average man less than a bottle of beer, or a pack of cigarettes, or a gallon of gasoline each week, or the average woman less than a jar of facial cream, or the average child less than the price of his movie ticket of that week.

Once an ambitious department head calmly defended his multi-million dollar new money request with the explanation that it amounted to less than a bag of pop-corn per day.

THE REBUTTAL

The difficulty with such translations is that government is not paid for in pop-corn, and it is not paid for by the week, and it is not financed on a per capita basis.

Gov. Reynolds insists that his higher spending program shall be financed through higher income taxes. The income tax, more than any other, is irrelevant to per capita comparisons. In the income tax one individual is more liable than another. The man who earns $6,000 a year not only pays on more income brackets, but he pays a higher rate on the additional brackets over the man who earns $4,000 a year.

The Republicans promptly pounced on the invalidity of the per capita equivalent in their own counterattack. The children in a family of five do not pay the taxes. The father does. He pays for five per capita shares. He may very well pay five times the total of the per capita share.

What may be 2 1/2 cents a week for each member of one family of Wisconsin, as the governor's speech writers argued the point, might be a dollar a week in another in the same precinct.

The Republicans also declared in effect that they can play a numbers game, as they suggested that the Reynolds budget would call for an additional tax $117 for the average Wisconsin family of five.

That was nearly as deceptive, to the extent that it translated Reynolds' budget into a biennial tax total, as was the governor's per week computation in the first instance, but it was probably useful in illustrating the arts of the political publicist in such situations.

THE MEANING

Such incidents show either that the politicians don't really believe their constituents will understand these things when they are put accurately and fairly, or that they can successfully distort them, and probably there is a little of both motives in both of the parties in such publicity contests.

The simple and perhaps unpleasant fact is that the state's fiscal picture today, assuming Gov. Reynolds succeeds in holding new taxation to the income tax system, implies a one per cent increase in each bracket of the personal income tax as a highly optimistic minimum.

Anybody can understand what that means by referring to his own state income tax situation. If the prospective increase is applied across the board, it will mean a rate of three per cent on the first bracket of income, rising to three and one quarter for the second, three and one half for the third, and so on down the brackets to 11 per cent.

It may be more. The important point is that it won't be assessed on a per capita basis.

Strictly Personal

Origin of Many Words Completely Unknown

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"I had the jitters the other day," said a friend, "and then I thought to myself what a wonderful word 'jitters' is, and I wondered how it got in the language."

Nobody really knows the origins of some of the most vividly descriptive words in English; they have no ancestry, and even no parentage; they simply appear one morning, fill a real need, and persist in the body of standard language.

Just as the more dubious kind of genealogist will make up a "family tree" for the newly rich, so will some philologists make up a phony ancestry for words of unknown origin. Indeed, the word "phony" is a prime example.

Nobody knows where it came from, or how it got into the language. Eric Partridge, the British etymologist, traces it back to Irish slang, and who is to contradict him? But the truth is that nobody knows; it has been said to originate in "funny business," in "telephone," and in the name of a Mr. Forney, who sold imitation jewelry. At any rate, "phony" has by now totally supplanted the old English "bogus."

It will surprise many that the word "quiz" is less than a century old, and is an utterly fabricated word. A showman in Dublin once bet an editor that he could have the whole city talking about a new word overnight. He sent his men out to write "quiz" on walls and fences all over the city — and the next day everyone was asking "What is quiz?" And thus the word has come to mean a question of that sort.

In his book, "Your English Words," John Moore points out that the word "slum" presents a complete mystery, appearing out of nowhere in the 19th century. Dickens used it in the current sense in 1851, but nobody knows where it came from, or why it took hold so firmly.

In our own time, Gelett Burgess, the author (best known for his quatrain "The Purple Cow"), has invented two words that have found their way into permanent English — "blurb" and "bromide." It is extremely rare, however, that the coinage of a word can be credited to any individual. Shakespeare changed words, but didn't invent them.

Lewis Carroll, of course, gave us "chortle"; Thomas Huxley made up "agnostic"; Alexander Pope coined "bathos"; and there are only a handful of such others that we can be sure will stay in the language. My own nomination for the most imperishable word-coinage of the 20th century is Stephen Potter's "gamesmanship," which has in less than a dozen years fathered a whole family of "manship" words.

'Something Wrong' At Murder House

Neighbor's Anxiety Leads to the Discovery of Multiple Shooting

BY DAVE OTTO
Post-Crescent News Service
GREEN BAY—Darold Aebescher and Jack Hebard were neighbors in the newly developed Hazlewood Lane area on Green Bay's far west side. They also worked together at North Central Airlines, Darold as a ground serviceman and Jack as senior agent.

It was a customary thing for Darold to glance at the Hebard residence on his way to the airport each morning to see if his pal was up and around. This morning, Aebescher saw lights on in the Hebard house and assumed his fellow worker was also preparing to leave for the airport.

Aebescher arrived at Austin Straubel Field about 5:30 a.m. When, by ten minutes to six, Hebard still hadn't arrived, Aebescher tried calling his home. There was no answer. Aebescher then called his wife and she told him the lights in the remodeled farm house kitty corner to them were still burning.

Suspicion then began to set in, and Aebescher thought it best to call police, since he could not get away from his job to check the Hebard home himself. A pair of detectives answered the call about 7 a.m., got no answer to their knock, and upon peering in a kitchen window, saw four bodies lying on the floor.

Each of the four, together with the body of Hebard who was found on a couch in the living room, had been shot in the head.

Police Chief Elmer Madison said that the family's evening meal still was on the stove and the television set was turned on. He said the victims were thus apparently shot before the dinner hour Monday.

An official police statement issued this morning said that

Oshkosh National Guard Armory Will be Dedicated in Sunday Rites

Displays and Field Maneuvers Slated In Day's Activities

OSHKOSH — A tour of the new National Guard Armory and simulated field maneuvers using 75 mm. and 90 mm. and other large caliber blank ammunition for tank and field gun operations will be part of the dedication of the new 32nd Division National Guard Armory here Sunday afternoon.

Military, governmental and civic leaders will participate in the ceremonies which will begin with a dedicatory program at 2 p.m. Sunday.

To accommodate the thousands of persons expected, arrangements for traffic control and car parking have been made by the Oshkosh police department, sheriff's department and civil defense auxiliary police.

Displays and demonstrations inside the armory will include an electric tool trailer complete with tools, generator with skill and chain-saw, power tools and a mine detecting set.

Medical equipment to be displayed will be a jeep with driver, medical supplies, nuclear chest, combat chest and field chest. Personnel exhibits will be a complete administrative document for one man, including a 201 file, medical records, pay vouchers, and set of unit orders. The mess section unit display will be a field range and cooking utensils.

Displayed by the supply section and ammunition squad will be a complete issue of clothing and equipment for one soldier. The communications platoon will set up a wireless field net and demonstrate it, and set up field phones and a switchboard which spectators will be permitted to use.

The outdoor portion of the dedication will feature the historical background and organization of the Combat Support Company, 2nd battle group, 127th Infantry Co., followed by a 15-minute description and demonstration of major items of equipment.

Concluding the outdoor demonstration will be a 30 minute mock battle including tank and anti-tank firing, simulated firing of 4.2 mortars in support of attack, and attack by reconnaissance platoon to seize, occupy and reorganize an objective.

The Oshkosh National Guard Armory houses the headquarters, headquarters company and combat support company of the 2nd battle group, 127th Infantry of Wisconsin's 32nd (Red Arrow) Infantry Division. The 130 by 200 foot building with approximately 24,000 square feet of floor space was constructed on the 37 acre plot of land donated to the state by the city of Oshkosh.

The building required nine months to complete and was used for the first time when the units returned from active service at Fort Lewis, Wash., in August of 1962. Total cost for the project was $247,000. This cost was borne through 75 per cent federal funds and 25 per cent state funds. It is owned and operated by the state of Wisconsin.

The interior of the building provides supply rooms, steel and brick reinforced vaults, a four point 22 caliber range, officers' staff rooms, locker rooms, rest

Byrnes, Laird Claim People Won't Accept Kennedy's Cuba News

Wisconsin Republicans Denounce Press Release of Administration

BY FRANCES MCKUSICK
Post-Crescent Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — If the American people no longer completely accept the assurances of President Kennedy and the Pentagon that Russian militarization of Cuba is a harmless one, it is either because the Administration's right hand does not seem to know what its left hand is doing, or because the public feels there is a lack of official frankness on the Cuban situation.

This, in effect, is the opinion of two Wisconsin Republican congressmen who this week took time out to review the sequence of events on Cuba and its present military potential.

"It is difficult for anyone to have confidence in Pentagon statements since the day the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Public Affairs (Arthur Sylvester) announced that the news had been 'managed' during the October Cuban crisis and would be 'managed' in the future when it was deemed necessary," complained Rep. John W. Byrnes, Rep. Green Bay.

"Now no one knows whether we are reading or listening to 'managed' or 'unmanaged' news," Laird agrees.

The second Wisconsin legislator, expressing virtually the same sentiments as Byrnes on what he described as "widespread skepticism with which administration pronouncements (on Cuba) are received" was Rep. Melvin R. Marshfield, who spoke for half an hour on the House floor this week on the news releases on the Cuban situation.

Stating that "the present Administration has lost the trust and confidence of a large part of the people of the United States," Laird told the House that "many of the assurances given by responsible Administration spokesmen about conditions in Cuba in the past have proven to be inaccurate."

One of the most glaring examples of this, according to Laird, were public statements made by Deputy Secretary of Defense Roswell L. Gilpatric regarding American missile bases in Turkey and Italy.

"On Nov. 11, 1962, Mr. Gilpatric denied that this Government was even considering closing down American missile bases in Turkey or in Italy and he repudiated the suggestion that missile bases in Turkey were no longer important."

"Yet in spite of Mr. Gilpatric's protests that 'all the bases we have today are important to us' and that 'we have no thought of giving up any of our overseas bases,' less than two months later, the word was out in the press that an official decision to remove missiles from both Turkey and Italy had been made," Laird says.

Byrnes, during a press interview, also spoke of Administration "inconsistencies" regarding the releases on the Cuban situation last Fall, charging that "the Administration has been guilty of either misleading the public or of horribly bad intelligence."

"For example, the State Department on Sept. 25, said point blank, 'there is no evidence of any organized combat force in Cuba from any Soviet bloc countries,' he recalled. "However, last week, during the Administration's chest-baring program, the chief of U.S. intelligence told a Senate committee that there were 22,000 Russian troops in Cuba in September, 1962. Furthermore the President did not discover until about Oct. 22 the missiles which others had said were being placed two to four weeks earlier."

He said that the details over the scope of the Russian buildup over which many persons in Washington are arguing are "only side issues to the principal concern."

"Everyone seems to agree that the Russians have a large force in Cuba," he commented. "A vast array of potent weapons has been shipped there, and the island is well on its way to becoming a Soviet bastion minutes away from our shores. It is vastly stronger than it was last July. And last July it was vastly stronger than it was in April, 1961, when this country backed away from the Bay of Pigs."

"In October of last year, we declined, for the second time, to take the tough action required to eliminate the Soviet base in Cuba. That base grows steadily stronger. We will face this test again, with the decision made indecisively that this Government was increasingly difficult because the cost will be infinitely greater," the Congressman concluded.

Molecule of Protein Shown To Scientists

Cambridge. Leading the team is Dr. John C. Kendrew, who won a 1962 Nobel prize in chemistry for work on analysis of proteins.

In Final Phase
The awesome problem of working out completely the structure of just one protein is approaching final solution, Watson said.

"We are at present involved in the final phase of this work in which we are revealing the molecule in full atomic detail," he said.

This means the ability to say exactly where each of 2,500 atoms is placed, spatially, in this molecule, and how the molecule itself is folded and shaped.

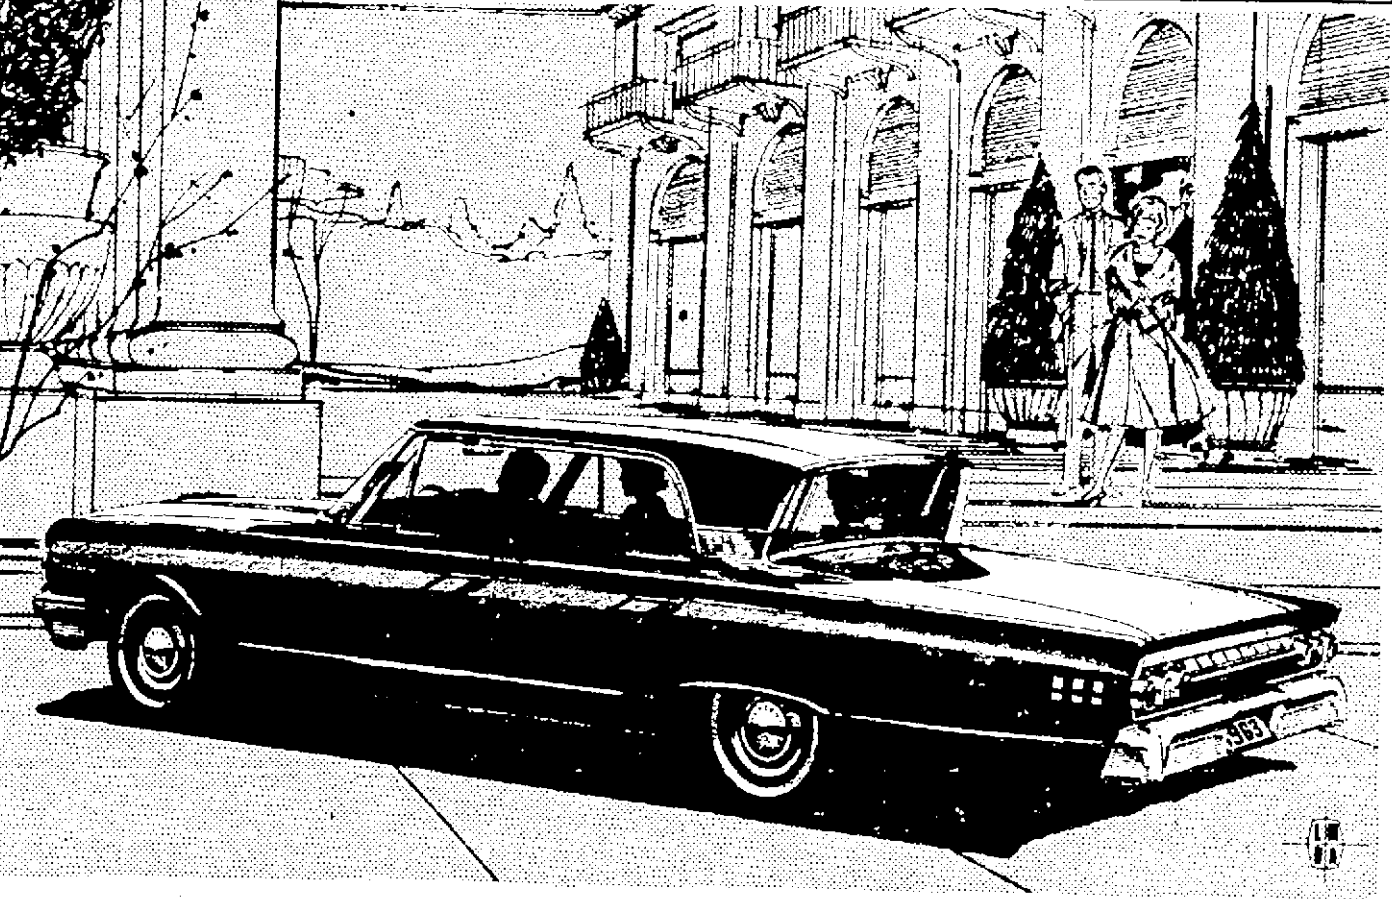

The protein with which they are working is myoglobin, which stores oxygen in a muscle.

The pinpoint analysis was done through taking thousands of X-ray pictures of the molecule, with this data fed into a computer. Refinements of technique have made it possible to improve the resolution through which the precise structure can be "seen," Watson said.

From analysis of one protein, some general rules can be indicated that may govern other protein molecules, he said. These involve the manner and mechanisms by which various proteins fold up into complex, specifically-shaped bundles to perform their essential functions, even though they are made of the same general types of bricks or amino acids.

It is thought that each protein molecule is made from a tremendously long straight chain of amino acids. Why and how they fold into their different patterns has been one of the deep mysteries.

ship had halted off northern Brazil because it ran out of fuel or had engine trouble. The Brazilian navy is under orders to seize the ship.

The navy has said the future of the hijackers—members of a Venezuelan terrorist organization—would be left to the Brazilian Foreign Ministry.

Second Mate Wilmar Medina Rojas radioed that he was the only crew member involved in the seizure. The other eight men who reportedly carried out the seizure with Medina Rojas apparently were Communist terrorists smuggled aboard before the ship sailed last Tuesday for Houston, Tex., and New Orleans, La. However, it was also reported that some of the crewmen joined the insurgents and will ask asylum in Brazil.

Retains Control
Betancourt said he was not worried about the situation at home because his government is backed not only by the majority of the people but by the armed forces. Scattered terrorist shooting and bombing continued in Caracas, but Interior Minister Carlos Andres Perez, the acting president, appeared to have the situation under control.

The 3,127-ton Anzoategui, anchored in shallow water about 3,000 yards off the island of Maracaibo, was located by U.S. Navy planes after a wide search through the Caribbean and South Atlantic.

The Brazilian corvette Solimoes was ordered to put a detachment of Brazilian marines aboard the Anzoategui and escort it to Belem.

Son Held in Slaying of Parents and 3 Children were still on then called police to report something looked wrong. A patrol car was sent to the home and officers checked the windows then called detectives when they found no activity. Detectives Dale Hereford and Robert Basche went to the home and knocked on the front door.

When they received no answer they went to a rear door glanced in and saw the bodies. The detectives forced open the door to an entry.

The bodies of Mrs. Hebard and the three children were found lying in pools of blood inside the kitchen. Hebard's body was in the living room lying on a davenport where he apparently had been sleeping.

Slayings Monday Night

According to police the shooting occurred about 5:30 or 6 p.m. Monday night. A kitchen table was partially set and food was cooking on the stove.

Police said Mrs. Hebard apparently was shot as she entered the home following a grocery shopping trip. Her body was still clad in a jacket. A bag of groceries was left on a step stool. Her body was found lying across the kitchen floor in front of the stove just to the right of the rear entrance.

Her son's body was lying next to hers, also fully clothed except for shoes. Both were face down. One daughter was lying partially under the table. Another was slumped in a chair in the corner of the room which was a combined kitchen and TV viewing room.

Police said all five had been shot in the head with a small-caliber weapon. A number of empty .22 caliber shell casings were found on the kitchen floor. Police said the murder weapon apparently was a pistol. A collection of guns was stored in the basement, authorities said, with one missing.

Watched Television

Police said they were unable to determine positively the order of the shooting. They said one girl apparently was sitting in a corner chair watching television. Her body lay alongside the chair and a spent bullet was found in a cushion. The chair was opposite the television set which was on all night, police said.

Hebard's body lay on its back on a living room couch. Police said he apparently had been shot while asleep. A single bullet hole was found in his forehead and powder burns alongside him indicated the murder weapon was held within a few inches of his head.

The kitchen table, although surrounded by six chairs, was set with only five plates. Four glasses were on the table along with a single cup and saucer. A butter dish also was on the table.

Police said one of the Hebard girls may have been setting the table when she was shot. A pan filled with potatoes was on the top of the gas stove while a roast was in its oven.

Roast Charred

Both the potatoes and roast were on all night. The pot was burned and the potatoes blackened. The roast was charred. A loaf of bread also lay on a counter.

Hebard, a senior agent for North Central Airlines at Austin, Texas, had joined the airline on Jan. 25, 1957 as a ground service man in Green Bay.

He was born Dec. 13, 1926 and had been raised in Hollywood, Calif. He was a member of the executive council of the Airline Employees Association which is the union representing North Central employees.

John Rudell, a son of Mrs. Hebard by a previous marriage, was a sophomore at West High School. School officials said he was a good student with a good attendance record. He had been absent five days so far this year due to illness, considered about normal for a high school student.

Changed Attitude

Harry Hebard, a junior at West High, was regarded as an average student. He was active in track where he won a letter last year, despite an ankle injury father

Missing Girl Found At Home of Friend

A 13-year-old junior high school girl missing from her home Monday was found about 10:30 p.m. Monday. Appleton police said the girl was picked up by police at a home of a friend. She had spent the day at several churches and laundromats in the city. She is being held by police for questioning.

that hampered his participation in the mile run.

School records show he had missed only a day and a half of school. It was reported however he was absent Monday afternoon. One of the youth's teachers indicated the boy's attitude in class had recently changed, though he declined further comment.

A first degree murder warrant was issued late this morning charging young Hebard with the murder of his father. The complaint was signed by Dist. Atty. Daniels issued by Dist. Atty. Robert Warren and signed by Judge James Byers, County Court Branch 2.

Cars Found at Home

Juvenile jurisdiction in the case was waived at the same time.

Young Hebard had been the object of a search since the bodies were found early this morning. Police said the two Hebard cars were found at home, one in a garage the other in the yard, indicating the boy had left the home on foot. There also was a report the boy did not know how to drive.

At 11 a.m. Dist. Atty. Robert Warren issued a warrant charging the youth with first degree murder in the slaying of his step-father.

U. S. Youth Starry-Eyed About Space: NASA

BY MARTHA COLE

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 13-year-old boy in New York wrote the National Aeronautics and Space Administration "I would be willing to die for NASA, my country and the seven astronauts."

Another boy, a senior in a Michigan high school wrote, "My main goal in life is to step foot on an alien planet."

These are but two examples found today in the letters that keep coming to NASA from young people starry-eyed about space. The boys and girls ask serious questions such as what courses they should be taking in high school and what colleges would be best for preparation for space work.

Girl Queries

It's amazing how many queries come from girls.

A girl 14 in North Carolina asked the prospects of becoming a woman astronaut.

"At the present time there are no specific plans for women to be trained as astronauts," NASA wrote her. It added encouragingly, "Perhaps by the time you graduate from college the picture will change."

To the high school girl in New Jersey who asked about job opportunities for women in space work, NASA wrote that several officials had read her letter.

"They are in agreement that this country can ill afford to ignore the contributions which able women can make in space science and technology."

One girl in Ohio said that her science club was building a capsule "similar we hope to one used by the astronauts."

Pollution Group Moves to End Waste Dumping

MADISON (AP) — The State Committee on Water Pollution moved Friday to require communities and industrial plants on the Peshigo and Menominee Rivers and their tributaries in Forest, Florence and Marinette counties to end waste dumping in the streams.

The orders were issued following committee study of testimony given at a public hearing in Marinette March 29, 1962.

The city of Crandon in Forest County was directed to complete construction of adequate sewage treatment facilities by Dec. 31, 1964 to end alleged pollution of Peshigo Lake.

The community of Laona in Forest County was given similar time to provide treatment of wastes allegedly going into the Rat River. Returning From Florida

Three Appleton men County Judge Stanley Stadl retired city employee Elmer O'Keefe and businessman George Peotter an insurance appraiser escaped serious injury Monday afternoon when their car was involved in a two-car collision on U.S. 41 about 90 miles south of Chicago.

The three men were returning to Appleton from a two-week vacation in Florida.

Judge Stadl planned today to have X-rays taken for a possible fracture. He was thrown from the rear seat of the car and landed outside the vehicle.

Peotter, driver of the vehicle which was headed north on 41, said he saw a car coming head on in the Peotter vehicle lane of traffic. Peotter veered his car to the right shoulder just as the oncoming car also veered onto the shoulder.

Peotter said he then turned his car to the left and went into the opposite lane of traffic and the oncoming car struck his car in the rear on the right side.

A Wheaton Ill. driver was charged with a violation resulting from the accident. Peotter said the Peotter car was damaged in the right side but was able to complete the trip to Appleton.

5 Deaths Worst Crime in History For Green Bay

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — The five deaths of a southwest side family today marked the most heinous crime in the city's history.

The worst previous crime of this nature was the triple murder and death of the killer in a S. Broadway tavern on Sept. 21, 1960. In that crime, the murderer, Walter Lawrence Ferry, 45, apparently died of an accidental discharge from the 30-30 rifle used in the killings.

Murdered in Red's Wander Inn, 112 S. Broadway, were Mrs. Joan Ann Gilson, 31, a part-time bartender, Patricia Ann Meitz, 21, Kaukauna, mother of four sons who had just arrived at the tavern before the shooting, and Alfred (Red) Phillipson, 33, tavern owner. Mrs. Gilson died in a hospital about 75 minutes after the shooting and the other three died outright.

State Medical Society Scolds Doctors for Not Contributing Enough

Past President Madison Bureau

MADISON — The organ of the State Medical Society of Wisconsin has scolded Wisconsin physicians and surgeons for their lack of support of the society's own charitable educational and scientific foundation.

In some of the largest and most prosperous localities it was said the doctors' indifference to the fund appeal was "appalling."

No Relief Expected For Basement Flooding

Sewer Projects in Central City Delayed Because of Other Work

Because of the heavy backlog of sewer construction projects, the possibility is dim for giving immediate attention to basement and street flooding in the central city area.

This was disclosed Monday during a meeting of the common council's street sanitation committee attended by members of the city engineering department staff.

City engineers have one of Appleton's most ambitious storm and sanitary sewer construction programs on the planning boards, and considerable work is expected to get started this spring.

However, due to the major scope of the Walnut Street sewer installation project which will affect a wide area within the central city, engineers indicated it would take several more months of study and plan preparation.

Librarian to Attend Meeting

New State Standards To be Discussed at Green Bay Gathering

Gordon Bebeau, chief librarian of the Appleton Public Library, will attend a meeting in Green Bay Wednesday to discuss public library development and the application of Wisconsin's new state standards for public libraries.

The meeting will be at the Kellogg Public Library, Green Bay, from 1 to 4 p.m. Gerald Somers is host librarian.

It is the first of a series of eight regional meetings being held on this topic by the Wisconsin Free Library Commission. Madison Members of the Commission staff and Miss S. Janice Kee, Commission secretary, will attend the meetings.

Wisconsin's new standards for public libraries, calling for the development of library systems, were adopted last October by the Free Library Commission, the Wisconsin Library Association and the Wisconsin Library Trustees Association.

According to the standards, ideally all the libraries in a natural area should be related. Every library should be in a library system and these separate systems should form a complete statewide network of library service backed up with resources at the state and national level.

To reach this goal the larger libraries must find ways to share their resources with other libraries on an area basis, the standards state.

Beatification of Two American Figures Approved by Rome

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican Congregation of Rites today approved the beatification of two American Roman Catholic figures: Mother Elizabeth Ann Seton and John M. Neumann.

Seton, a convert to Catholicism, may become the United States' first native-born saint.

Born in New York in 1774, she turned after her husband's death to the education of youth and to charitable work. She founded the Sisters of Charity of St. Joseph in America and died in Emmitsburg, Md., in 1821.

Her beatification is scheduled for March 17.

Bishop Neumann was born in Bohemia in 1811. After studying for the priesthood in Budweis, he came to America in 1836 and was ordained in New York.

Pope Pius IX named him bishop of Philadelphia in 1852. He died there in 1860.

His beatification is scheduled for March 19, the feast day of St. Joseph.

The way for the beatification was cleared today as cardinal prelates and theologians belonging to the Vatican's Congregation of Rites met with Pope John XXIII in the papal throne room.

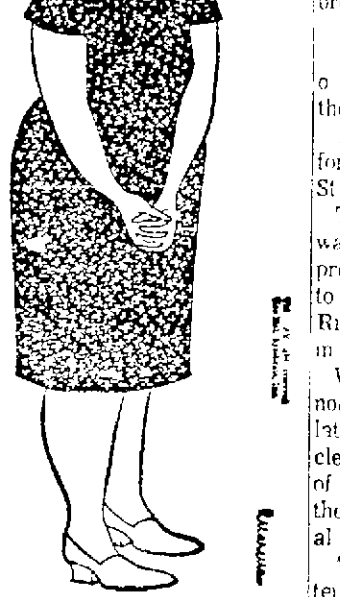

With the Pope looking on but not voting, the cardinals and prelates approved formally two miracles proposed for the beatification of each figure. The approval of the miracles amounted to approval of the beatifications.

After they are beatified at glowing ceremonies in St. Peter's, the two will merit the name blessed.

Mother Seton will be the first native-born American to receive this honor.

Two further miracles must be approved for sainthood.

Frank Sinatra Emcee April Oscar Show

Tongo Assesses Films in Annual Race, Favors 'Miracle Worker' and 'Requiem'

GO
April 8 on Channel 11, Frank Sinatra will appear in a role that has been a traditional job for Bob Hope. The gig for Sinatra will be watching over the distribution of the gold statuette nicknamed Oscar.

Feb. 25, nominations will have been made in 10 categories and the film industry will start to ballot. A major film category there are 60 shows for nomination and consequent balloting. Sinatra will have a special interest in one of the nominees. He is listed as the producer and one of the stars of "Sergeants 3."

Old champion of the Oscar race is Walt Disney. Walt has a stable entry of five asplendid dog story, "Big Red," a kid's show, "Aladdin," a family story, "Bon Voyage," an adventure tale, "In the Castaways" and a space segment "Moon Pilot."

Special interest, perhaps, is in the fact that two of the front-runners for acting, directing, etc. honors started off on a horse race, there could be a better tip than "Miracle Worker" and "Requiem for a Dream." They should have been kept in the race.

Van Johnson, who made its move from television to the silver screen, "Miracle Worker," a White Way great deal before traveling West.

BY BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Sometimes you can stay in this town too long. You start to lose your confidence. That's when you've got to get out of Hollywood and see if you're still got what it takes."

Van Johnson, who courted June Allyson and Esther Williams through many an MGM movie, is back starring in a Hollywood film after a four-year absence, during which he restored his confidence. He is playing opposite Janet Leigh in "Wives and Lovers."

"Janet and I go 'way back," he said. "We were together in her first picture, 'Romance of Rosy Ridge' (1947)."

Same Bounce
Van has the same infectious bounce from those golden MGM days. He admitted that he had to hit the road to regain his enthusiasm. His feature career was ailing, and he lacked the discipline that he had learned in his early years on Broadway.

He got it back doing "Music Man" in London.

"I thought I could just toss it off, but I found out otherwise," he said. "I had to really train to keep up the pace. I gave up booze and smoking. That was two years ago, and I haven't taken up either of them since."

'Music Man' Tour
Van returned here last year, played "Music Man" at the Cincinnati Music Center, then toured in a mint in tents and outdoor theaters. A Broadway play with Carroll Baker, "Come On Strong," sparked the interest in his film career again.

Marriage Interferes With Combat

BY TV SCOUT

6:30-7:30 (Channel 11) — Combat examines the wartime marriage of an Army nurse (Peggy Ann Garner) and a corporal (Jeremy Slate). He wants a two-day pass so he can be with his wife. To get it, he must find someone to replace him on a dangerous mission and Jack Hogan volunteers. But Hogan is beaten up in a fight and winds up in the hospital where he hears some gossip about Slate's wife.

7-7:30 (Channel 2) — The Lloyd Bridges Show has a kind of pilot film for a series, with the idea being to use folk songs from around the world as springboards for stories. Tonight we have the old Irish ballad, "The Rising of the Moon," and a story about the Irish rebellion and "The Bold Ruy" (Bridges) who has a date with some dynamite which conflicts with his wedding to Kathy Nolan.

7:30-8:30 (Channel 4) — If you can't decide whether the character Pat Conway plays on Empire is a nice guy or a heel, it's because the script's ending was changed after it was all shot. This show, which tells how Connie Garret mixes romance and potash, was completed before the decision to drop Terry Moore, who plays Connie. (Anne Seymour will be killed off in two weeks.) Originally, Pat was a heel and Connie found it out before she married him. But, to ease Terry's exit, they re-shot to make Pat a hero.

8:30-9 (Channel 2)—The Jack Benny Program has two high spots. One is a funny bit with a radio sound effects man, and the other a comedy skit with some clever dialogue about Stephen Foster's wife, who talks about her old folks at home who live way down upon the Swance River. Jack plays Foster, who is trying to write lyrics that start "apples are red," and Connie Francis is his helpful wife.

8:30-9:30 (Channel 11)—Another bright crook tries to put one over on Eliot Ness in The Untouchables. It's Jack Klugman's turn, and he has a network of cordial shops, small establishments that serve as outlets for his bootleg booze. Ness (Robert Stack) gets an assist from George Voskovec, as a man whose son was killed running some of Klugman's whiskey into Chicago.

9-10 (Channel 2)—Some happy moments on The Garry Moore Show: Jonathan Winters as a resident of a home for old hipsters; a folk song sing-along, with Dorothy Landon leading the way through "The Good Peanut"; Carol Lawrence dancing to "Days of Wine and Roses."

9:30-10 (Channel 11)—A special tonight is coverage of the San Francisco's Chinese New Year Parade. We are now in the year of the Hare, and you'll see the dragon-infested gorgy festivities in Chinatown as the Hare cuts in.

They were assisted by Mrs. and Mrs. Elmer Abel, Joseph Lessard, Paul Radtke, Robert Hickinbotham, Robert Balliet, James Kwitek and Clarence Godhart. Pre-party cocktail hours were held at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Towsley, Mr. and Mrs. John O'Connell, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Seghers and Mr. and Mrs. John Christman.

The Stardusters party chairmen were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Schulze, assisted by Mrs. and Mrs. Sheldon Kurath, Sherwood Russell, Walter Stahl, Robert Stumpf and Ruben Timmel. Today's Etiquette

BY LOUISE DAVIS

THE GREATEST GIFT
Dear Louise: I am heart sick over the attitude of our nieces and nephews as well as the children of some of our close friends. They don't seem to know that we love them dearly but get nothing in return, not even a friendly "hello" or "hi."

Most of these young people are teen-agers and we always send them lovely gifts for their birthdays and at other gift-giving holidays. Rarely do we get a thank you and when we do, they act as though their mothers told them to do it and what to say. Their remarks are mechanical and without meaning. I hate to comment about this to their parents. What else can we do? What is happening that these young people are so unappreciative? We can't help but feel that we are spending our money for nothing.

Louise Davis Answers:
Love is the greatest gift of all. Gift giving doesn't by affection. I suggest that you try giving these young people love by demonstrating it when you are together. Attention, conversation on their level, smiles and a hug now and then will help. With love there is understanding and you want it to work both ways. If your gifts in the past have been lavish and expensive, I suggest that in the future — at least for a while — you pare down the cost when purchasing them. I can't help but think that many parents, relatives, even friends indulge in the children with material things to compensate for the lack of demonstrative love and attention that many people don't take time to give.

Good Bids Make for Easy Play

Which would you rather be — a good bidder or a good player? The answer is not even close: good bidding is easier and more profitable than good card play.

South should bid two spades

Opening lead — ♣ Q

Instead of two notrump at his second turn, North would then raise to four spades, and South would be in a very simple, unbeatable contract.

Even if West leads a trump against four spades, declarer can give up a diamond, win the trump return, and ruff two diamonds in dummy to make sure of ten tricks. Any other defense gives South an easier time.

At three notrump South must be a fine card player and must get some help from the opponents. South has only eight tricks to begin with and must develop his ninth trick before the opponents can get three clubs and two diamonds.

Holds Up
Declarer lets West win the first trick with the queen of clubs. West continues with a low club, and South holds up the ace once more, allowing East to win with the king.

When South discards the deuce of spades on the second round of clubs, East can see the chance to develop three clubs and two diamonds. East cannot afford to cash the king of diamonds since then declarer would take the third round of clubs and set up a diamond as his ninth trick.

East returns a third club, and South allows West to win with the ten of clubs, discarding a heart from the South hand. South doesn't know that East has both of the top diamonds but it is a cinch that West will not switch to South's bid diamond suit.

And so it works out. West switches to the ten of spades, and South takes the ace and king of spades, the king and queen of hearts, and then dummy's queen of spades to rattle off four spades, three hearts, and two clubs.

All that work to make a risky game in notrump when South can virtually spread the hand for ten tricks at spades!

Daily Question
Partner opens with one club, and the next player passes. You hold: S Q 6 5 3, H A 10 4, D 6 CA 9 7 6 5. What do you say?

Answer: Bid one spade. Show the major suit before raising partner's minor. If nobody makes the first move with a four-card major suit you will never reach a 4-4 fit in a major.

Heartless 'Friends' Aggravate Grief With Their Tactlessness and a pretzel to you, Ann, for comfortable with the opposite sex. DEAR ANN LANDERS: Re-telling her so. — Una Voce Anno- send for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Una: Thanks for the cheers. If you don't mind I'll pass up the beers and the pretzel.

Just one more word to "Understanding Mother." Have a statistic: The average age for the unwed mother in this country is 15. This ought to clear your sinuses, Madame.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a high school senior whose problem is kids borrowing lunch money and forgetting to pay it back. This month I am short $3.

The word must have gotten around that I am a soft touch because all the kids seem to come to me when they need money. I'm not a fat cat, I don't drive a car, and my dad is no banker. I don't know why they think I'm loaded.

The same kids who owe me money buy candy bars and malted milks after school. They also seem to have money to buy gas for their cars. This makes me sore.

Please tell me if it is polite to remind people that they owe money? I hate to do it, but sometimes I think it's the only way I'll ever get my dough back.

Dear Red: Some kids do forget, so a reminder is in order. But if they don't come through after one nudge, make a mental note that Soandso is a deadbeat and never loan him money again.

It's amazing that some boobs will sell their most valuable possession — a good reputation for less than a dollar.
